

Raids Net 20 on Drug Counts

By WALTER S. CLARK
TOWN OF ULSTER
Sweeping pre-dawn narcotics raids in Ulster and Greene counties directed by state and area authorities resulted in the arrests of 20 persons on drug charges and three for reported illegal possession of firearms.
Two of the men seized were described by authorities as reported "big shot" suppliers of heroin. One had been apprehended in raids earlier this year.
15 'Pushers'
Fifteen of those arrested were charged as "pushers" of the narcotics in the area. Several are accused of peddling heroin to college and high school students in the New Paltz area.
Most of those arrested were picked up on bench warrants issued after sealed indictments were returned by grand juries in the two counties.
Raids in Ulster netted 11 persons on drug charges. Greene County authorities hooked eight men and a juvenile on similar counts, authorities said.
Investigator Thomas F. May-one and Senior BCI Investigator Edward Shannon said a large quantity of heroin and other drugs was seized along with implements capable of administering narcotics. One defendant had 100 bags of heroin in his possession and a man termed one of the big suppliers had $1,400 in cash with him when arrested, police said.
More than two dozen State Police BCI and deputy sheriffs took part in the Ulster crackdown, and 16 troopers participated in Greene County operations.
A surprise incident occurred in New Paltz where three men were nabbed after they allegedly threw two unloaded pistols from a house that was surrounded by police.
Arrested on bench warrants in Ulster County and charged with criminal sale of dangerous drugs were:

Paltz Resident Killed in Springtown Road Mishap

By SHANE CROSBY
ROSENDALE
A 27-year-old New Paltz resident was killed here early this morning when his late model small convertible crashed into a tree on Springtown Road, about two miles south of Route 213.
State police said the victim, Stephen R. Robbins, was traveling at a "high rate of speed" when his car left the road and plowed 200-feet along the shoulder, returned to the roadway and traveled another 64-feet before hitting a tree.

Robbins was heading south, towards New Paltz, on the winding, narrow road when the crash occurred at 2:15 a.m., the Lake Katrine Troopers said.
A Springtown Road resident called the State Police headquarters when the crash took place, but Robbins was dead upon arrival at Kingston Hospital with massive neck injuries. He was alone in the car, police said. Don's Ambulance of Rosendale answered the call.

A resident of the Town House Apartments in New Paltz, Robbins was the 48th traffic death on Ulster County Highway this year, and the sixth county road death this month. Troopers Carl VanWagenen, John McMickle and Sergeant Henry Rhodes investigated the crash.

Today's fatal crash followed by less than a week the fifth road death which occurred Friday in Ellenville when Gertrude Bahr, 39, of Ellenville, was struck by a car as she crossed a village street.
Meanwhile, a patch of fog on the state Thruway at the New Paltz interchange was blamed for a five-car crash Tuesday night in which eight persons were injured. Troopers said the chain-reaction collision occurred at 9:15 p.m. when a car slowed on the super highway and four other cars crashed, one after another.

The crash took place at the northbound ramp at the interchange.
The eight were taken to Kingston and Benedictine Hospitals by Doctor's Ambulance. All had minor injuries, police said. One of the injured was Mrs. Janet Longendyke, 61, of Alcazar Avenue, Kingston.

Troopers issued a summons to 16-year-old Richard Forsman of Arkville, near Margaretville, the driver of the third car. Troopers said he was an unlicensed operator. No charges were filed against any of the other drivers.

Hundreds of Ceremonies Back Nixon

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Hundreds of Veteran's Day ceremonies, many aimed at giving President Nixon's "silent majority" a chance of piping up, drew thousands of flag-waving citizens in cities and hamlets across America.
Some of the larger crowds—estimated by police at more than 10,000 each—were in Washington, Boston and Tallahassee, Fla.
Massachusetts Gov. Francis W. Sargent—declaring "Veterans are being produced the hard way in Vietnam at this very moment"—led 11,000 marchers in Boston. The Tallahassee parade featured traditional floats and civic displays.
In the nation's capital, organizers of the Veterans Day Freedom Rally at the Washington Monument could claim success as the estimated turnout on a cool but clear autumn day matched their predictions.

The mostly white, neatly dressed gathering in Washington applauded and shouted approval during the 2½ hours as speaker after speaker attacked leaders of the war protest movement.
They heard Rep. Donald Lukens, R-Ohio, call the war protestors "Spockettes" after the well-known baby doctor and outspoken war critic, Benjamin Spock.
"They've had their day, they're beginning to make daddy and big brother mad," Lukens said.
They cheered agreement when Ed Butler, 34, who calls himself a "conflict manager," said of Saturday's war protest march: "Parading with these people is like marching with the Mafia for better law enforcement."
Not far away, the President and Mrs. Nixon paid a 45-minute visit to a Veterans Administration hospital. Their daughter, Julie, and her husband, David Eisenhower, observed the day in the same fashion by touring a hospital in Northampton, Mass.

Ulster County's response to Veterans Day was the largest in recent memory. Story on page 3.
In Pensacola, Fla., after a "biggest ever" Veterans Day parade, program chairman Clarence Morrow said: "The silent majority showed their respect for the President, this country and the flag today."
Near a monument honoring World War I dead at Ridge-wood, N.J., five men and a woman camped out in tent overnight and reported collecting more than 400 signatures supporting the U.S. policy in Vietnam. Sponsors called the gesture "a vigil for our flag."
The nation's only surviving five-star general, Omar Bradley, 76, told 1,500 persons in the huge Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum: "If we as a nation lack the belief we are pledged to uphold, then we do not deserve the heritage which is ours. Other generations have kept the faith. It is our turn to keep the faith. This heritage is freedom, with responsibility."

In Milwaukee, Wis., about 15 veterans burned a Viet Cong flag they seized from a booth being operated by the Students For a Democratic Society at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee campus.

Other programs backing U.S. policy were held in:
—Sioux Falls, S.D., where Ed McGaa, a Sioux Indian who flew 110 combat missions over Vietnam, called for a "united effort" behind the President.
—Atlanta, where Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox said those who participate in war protests "betray our boys in battle."
—Jefferson City, Mo., where the Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., warned violence is on the agenda for this weekend's war protest in Washington.

—Petersburg, Va., where Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., D-Va., said the "... most logical way to achieve an early and honorable peace is to support the sincere efforts of the commander-in-chief."
—Miami, Fla., where two airplanes circled the city trailing signs, one of which read: "Peace Yes—Surrender No."

POUGHKEEPSIE
On the eve of the second three-day Moratorium, Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. has asked that those involved in the march of Washington "think seriously about what they propose."
"What are their alternatives to the President's clearly stated plans and purpose?" Fish asked.
Fish himself declares them to be "national humiliation, suspicion, divisiveness and recrimination."
The Congressman said further that on Nov. 3 "the President sincerely answered many basic questions which have worried many of our people about our Vietnamese policy."
Because of this I believe that except for those who seek confrontation for the sake of confrontation, except for those who care little for peace but seek only to tear the very fabric of our democratic society, no reason exists for a march on Washington. The prayers heard in October, the bona fide grassroots expressions for peace are one thing. An inherently dangerous mass march on Washington is quite another.

A compromise in Washington for a pledge of nonviolence from leaders of the antiwar protest march. . . . Story Page 46.
"I urge the leaders of the march to think well of the risks involved. I urge the followers to think carefully before they follow. For it seems to me quite possible, that the major casualty which may be trampled under the feet of the marchers is our right to peaceful dissent."

Fish said that the President, in outlining what has to be done, including the unsuccessful but sincere efforts which have been made by this country to end the fighting, "gave one of the most frank and honest appraisals of Vietnam that has been ever given by the American people."
The 28th District congressman said "they must know too that the President and this administration is working for exactly the sort of peace they themselves long for."

"The Gallup telephone poll taken immediately following the speech showed 77 per cent of those contacted approved the President's steps toward peace. More than that, I believe those 77 per cent were also reflecting understanding and sympathy for the President's sincerity."

Our Local Youth Mobilizing-- And Swimming Pool the Goal

By CHARLES TIANO
Sports Editor
KINGSTON
The idea of a group of youngsters mobilizing to raise $100,000 to build a public swimming pool sounds like the impossible dream.
But there are such kids who dream such dreams in our midst and Friday night at 8 o'clock they meet at St. Joseph's school auditorium to reveal their plans and goals to the public. And they would like to see you there.
The meeting is billed as the first in a series of clinics designed to acquaint the interested public with all phases of their objective. For starters they need $10,000 and they are willing to campaign for it.
At Friday's meeting, they'll show a color film of the 1968

Summer Olympics. It cost them a cool $150 to get the film to Kingston. The entire gamut of the Olympic Games in Mexico will be seen in sound and color.
There is an extra added attraction in the person of Art Stockin, swimming coach at State University New Paltz and one of the leading authorities on swimming in this part of the country.
Stockin, who served as pool director at Wiltwyck Country Club this season, will conduct a discussion on competitive age-group swimming.
According to plans announced by interested youngsters, the campaign to raise funds to build the pool will be youth-directed, with adult supervision.
Among the young people who are taking an active part in getting the program launched are Craig Murray, Kingston High School swimming star and Claudia Randel. The adults lending assistance include Stockin, Mrs. Joseph Pechloff and Ron Gabriele, Kingston High School swimming coach.

Special
A formal organization is expected after Friday's meeting, with the election of officers and directors.
"We're confident we can put this over," said Murray. "The idea has been copied from another community and we think we can put it over like they did."
The youngsters are planning a variety of fund-raising efforts, including movies, bake sales, spaghetti dinners and other promotions of that type.

"It may take quite a while to accomplish this, but you have to respect the fact that here we have a bunch of teenagers who are out trying to do something good for themselves and the city," said Murray. "Both boys and girls are involved in this project."
Gabriele, an ardent swimming booster, described the youngsters as "unbelievable."
"If they get this pool," said Gabriele, "they intend to use it for age-group swimming the year round. It would be available to the high school varsity. These marvelous kids deserve the support of the entire community." Gabriele added, "and I for one am rooting for them. They understand the tremendous problems involved but they are dedicated and willing to work toward their goal."

JOSEPH TORRACA

KINGSTON
District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca today cautioned residents of the county who suffer from arthritis against being misled by firms who offer for sale the so-called arthritis bracelet with guarantees that their ills will be cured if worn by the individual.

Thomas F. Mayone, chief investigator for the district attorney's staff, said numerous complaints had been received from arthritis sufferers in Ulster County, who complained that they received no benefits from such an item.

"This appears as a fraud in that the bracelet does not cure arthritis," Mayone said.

Mayone contacted the office of State Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz regarding the complaints from county residents. It was said that a Georgia firm has been advertising the bracelets which sell for about $8.69.

The district attorney's office noted that a release from the office of the Attorney General titled Arthritis Bracelet Makes Comeback, points out that "medieval alchemists who tried to transform base metals into gold have nothing on modern medical quacks who claim to use copper as a cure."

Lefkowitz warned of the sudden revival of popularity of one of the "oldest and most vicious medical swindles on record — the arthritis bracelet."

Despite assurances from the National Arthritis Foundation that there is no basis for assuming that arthritis suffers require copper supplements in any form, the notion that copper applied to or near the skin will activate certain body processes has enjoyed wide and prevalent popularity, it was noted in Lefkowitz's caution.

An influx of complaints to the Bureau of Consumer Frauds and Protection of the Attorney General's office, indicated that "this swindle based on superstition is far from defunct in our modern scientific age."

In warning New Yorkers not to be taken in by extravagant claims of hours of "blessed relief" from arthritis, rheumatism and muscular ailments, Lefkowitz said, "there is as yet no known cure for arthritis and many of its associated problems. I strongly urge arthritis victims to ignore these pitches and instead consult a competent physician who can prescribe a course of treatment best suited to individual needs."

Sales Tax In County, Elsewhere

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

How does the amount of sales tax and distribution of sales tax money in Ulster County compare with the 39 other counties of the state imposing a sales tax?

According to the State Department of Audit and Control, Ulster is the only county imposing a mere one per cent. The others have leveled two or three per cent. Ulster was not permitted to impose more than one per cent because the City of Kingston had already leveled a sales tax of two per cent and the state imposes three per cent bringing the total tax in the city to six per cent — the limit permitted. Residents of the county pay a combined state-county tax of four per cent.

A study shows that in 22 counties the proceeds are used for general purposes of government. Ulster falls into this category and retains 100 per cent of the receipts.

The remaining counties allocate the sales tax revenue to their cities, towns and school districts. These allocations vary from county to county.

At various times it has been suggested that Ulster also designate the receipts for use by schools and towns but the Legislature has remained convinced that it will stick by its original plan to put the revenue in the general fund to be applied to reducing the property tax load for all county residents.

Ulster recently received its first quarterly return from the sales tax imposed June 1. It amounted to over a half million dollars, the amount anticipated by many legislators who expected about $2-million a year.

The State Tax Law requires that, unless a county sales tax allocation formula is based on population, it must be agreed upon by the elective governing boards of the county and its cities, with the approval of the state comptroller.

This allows each county to select the formula best suited to its particular needs, according to Comptroller Arthur Levitt.

Nine counties base the distribution on a fixed percentage of the proceeds or a fixed annual amount. They are Cayuga, Fulton, Jefferson, Livingston, Onondaga, Sullivan, Tompkins and Wayne Counties.

Seven counties base the allocation on population. They are Monroe, Tioga, Broome, Chautauque, Chemung, Erie and Genesee. Two counties, Niagara and Cortland, use the full taxation of real property as a basis for distribution.

All counties leveling the sales tax, with the exception of Cayuga, retain a portion of the revenues for general county purposes.

Thirteen counties distribute sales tax proceeds to their cities and towns only. They are Broome, Cayuga, Chautauque, Chemung, Clinton, Cortland, Fulton, Genesee, Jefferson, Niagara, Onondaga, Tioga and Tompkins.

Livingston, Wayne and Sullivan Counties distribute revenues from the sales tax to school districts only and the counties of Erie and Monroe to their cities, towns and school districts.

Lefkowitz Will Not Probe Spend Charges

NEW YORK (UPI) — Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz said Monday he would not investigate charges against State Sen. Edward J. Speno, who had requested the inquiry.

Lefkowitz said he had informed Speno this date "that my office is without statutory authority to undertake such an inquiry."

The attorney general released a letter from Speno, R-East Meadow, concerning conflict of interest raised by the Long Island newspaper Newsday. Speno asked Lefkowitz' office to examine and investigate certain Newsday charges against him to determine whether he had violated his public trust as a senator.

Veterans Day in Ulster County... Largest Response in Recent Years

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA
KINGSTON

The response to Veterans Day across Ulster County was reportedly the largest in recent memory.

On Monday, thousands of students participated in salutes to Veterans Day in their classrooms and, in some instances, in special assembly programs. Wide participation was reflected, too, in a proportionately high number of communities, mostly under the sponsorship of veterans organizations such as the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Here in Kingston, brief ceremonies began at 10:30 a.m. in front of City Hall; ended at 11 a.m. sharp with the firing of a salute by an 11-man VFW rifle team. Some 75 people, mostly Legionnaires and VFW members braved grey skies to hear speeches by Ulster County Sheriff William B. Martin and Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo.

Tribute Paid

At City Hall, ceremonies began with the playing of a recording of "God Bless America;" continued with Martin paying tribute to the nation's war dead, and Gallo urging support for President Nixon in his efforts to seek peace in Vietnam.

Five peace people, some carrying war protest signs, were also present at the City Hall rites, but there were no incidents as they stood quietly through the ceremony.

Nearly 500 Legionnaires, VFW members, Scouts and Marine Corps League members marched in Saugerties Tuesday night. It was the largest

Veterans Day parade in Saugerties in years. Later some 300 people assembled in Donlon Auditorium to hear an address by Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. Also on the program was a musical patriotic tribute featuring the local Up With People group and other performers.

A torchlight parade in the Village of Rhinebeck Tuesday night brought out about 60 marchers. Most wore the tri-cornered hats of the American Legion and VFW; some carried signs reading: "America—Love It Or Leave It."

Some Sharp Criticism

At Town of Poughkeepsie's Town Hall, an audience of Dutchess County residents heard an address by State Senator Jay P. Rolison Jr. (R, Dutchess-Ulster). The major portion of Rolison's speech was given over to sharp criticism of the protest movement against the Vietnam war. Referring to the Oct. 15 Moratorium, he accused some of his fellow public officials of spending that day "jumping from campus to campus, inflaming our young people and setting themselves up as some sort of Messiah."

The state senator also attacked the group known as Dutchess Students to End the War in Vietnam; said they were "radicals who used the war as an excuse to subvert and disrupt."

Meanwhile, with Veterans Day and its "silent majority" demonstrations over, those same students and others like them planned responses of their own as the "vocal minority" got ready to take to the streets for the second series of activities of the Vietnam Moratorium slated Nov. 13 and 14.

Red Hook Petition Stresses an 'Urgent Need'

RED HOOK The Red Hook Town Board has been hit by more than its share of petitions and citizens' groups of late, but a new and different kind of petition backed the town's efforts Tuesday night.

Richard Mahoney presented petitions to the Board, with a reported 450 signatures and "more to come," asking for all haste possible in presenting zoning to the public for passage.

The petition stressed the "urgent need to adopt planning and zoning ordinances at the earliest possible date" and also asked for investigation into the possible forestalling of any new commercial site development in the town until the zoning is a reality.

The draft is the work of a new committee, still forming, called the "Committee of Concerned Residents and Taxpayers," who were very vocal in the packed board rooms about their aims. These concerned citizens were almost all property owners who feared that such things as trailer parks, dumps, auto wrecking firms, housing developments, and industries would lower their property value and, in their words, have an "unfavorable impact" on the community.

Sidney Mead, of the Red Hook zoning commission, said that there is "absolutely nothing that can prohibit the establishment of these sites until the zoning has been passed."

Arthur Hand, of the planning board gave a timetable for progress of implementing the presently completed zoning proposal. The Commission will hold its first public hearing at the Red Hook High School cafeteria Nov. 25 at 8 p.m.

A second informational meeting and public hearing is scheduled for the same place Dec. 2. If a third meeting is necessary, the Town Board will have to hold it Dec. 16.

Mrs. Charles Hoffman said that trailer parks were her nemesis, as her property already is bordered by two and possibly "threatened" with a third. "We haven't finished a third school building yet, and we will need a fourth soon if this keeps up," she said.

Hand noted that the Planning Board can recommend granting or not granting license to build to the Department of Health, but its power is insignificant otherwise.

"We have had several would-be developers visit us in the past year with plans, and by talking things over we have sometimes been able to convince them to change their plans to suit our desires," said Hand. "Of course, they don't have to by law without comprehensive zoning."

The only ordinances controlling land use in the Town of Red Hook currently are those governing mobile homes, but not the location of trailer parks, and one governing the establishment of landfill sites.

23 Freight Cars Jump Tracks in Ulster

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

TOWN OF ULSTER

Twenty-three cars of a 63-car southbound freight train of Penn Central Railroad derailed this morning near Kirtine Lane in the Town of Ulster.

A spokesman at the Penn Central dispatcher's office in Kingston said no complete reports on the mishap had been received. However, it was reported that no one was injured in the mishap.

He said equipment and a crew was proceeding from Selkirk yards to clear the track. The spokesman said two engines were pulling the 63-car train.

Town of Ulster Constable Norman W. Caunitz, who was at the scene said most of the derailed cars contained furniture and clothing. There were no coal or tank cars, he said.

Constable Caunitz said one of the two engines was derailed at the Katrine Lane crossing and this started the chain reaction which turned over a total of 23 cars. He also said there were no injuries reported. Shortly after 10 a.m. Caunitz said he was returning to the scene to clear the area of sightseers because of the impending arrival of the wrecking crew and equipment from Selkirk.

Friday four coal-laden cars moving through the city were upset opposite Rondout Gardens spilling more than 100 tons of coal over a wide area of the roadbed. Work crews were working all weekend to clear the tracks.

Penn Central also was hit by a 47-car derailment May 1 on the same stretch of track near Boice's Lane, a short distance south of the derailment scene today.

At that time traffic going to IBM was snarled when IBM employees found the crossing blocked by the mishap. No injuries were reported at that time.

The train bound for North Bergen, N.J., from Chicago slammed into a propane gas tank causing fire officials to declare a dangerous situation. Winds swept away the escaping fumes, reducing the fire hazard. At that time the train was hauling cargo trailers which were dumped all along the right-of-way. Some cars burst open in the mishap strewn drygoods cargo all along the tracks.

Rhinebeck Man Is Recovering, Bitten by Cobra

RHINEBECK

Charles D. Montfort, 53, who operates the Montfort Reptile Institute on Schultz Hill Road off Route 9G in this township with his son, Peter, has fully recovered from an Indian Cobra bite he received while applying medication to the snake.

Peter said his father was treating the Cobra on Sunday for a throat infection, when the snake bit him on the left thumb. "We took my father to the Northern Dutchess Hospital where they were prepared to inject anti-venom, and I made inquiries to find where a supply of anti-venom could be obtained," the younger Montfort said.

The elder Montfort complained of slight pains in his throat and he experienced a headache and other symptoms of the presence of venom.

Nurses and physicians stood by prepared to inject the anti-venom if needed.

After a while it was decided that it would not be necessary to inject the anti-venom, Peter said, adding "there apparently was only a small quantity of venom in my father from the bite."

"My father came out of it satisfactorily, with no ill effects," Peter said.

"The Cobra also is enjoying good health," the younger Montfort observed.

In a recent interview with a Freeman reporter, Peter said that he had "not been bitten yet," but he recalled that in 1956 his father was bitten while handling a snake in Florida. At that time he recovered, but he suffered tremendous swelling of the hand, intense pain and shock.

The Montforts conduct tours for school children and the public, who are shown the more than 100 reptiles including snakes, lizards, alligators, a crocodile and a little chimp called Annie.

Peter and his father have taught reptile safety and survival to members of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps and are considered experts in their field.

Sales Tax In County, Elsewhere

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

How does the amount of sales tax and distribution of sales tax money in Ulster County compare with the 39 other counties of the state imposing a sales tax?

According to the State Department of Audit and Control, Ulster is the only county imposing a mere one per cent. The others have leveled two or three per cent. Ulster was not permitted to impose more than one per cent because the City of Kingston had already leveled a sales tax of two per cent and the state imposes three per cent bringing the total tax in the city to six per cent — the limit permitted. Residents of the county pay a combined state-county tax of four per cent.

A study shows that in 22 counties the proceeds are used for general purposes of government. Ulster falls into this category and retains 100 per cent of the receipts.

The remaining counties allocate the sales tax revenue to their cities, towns and school districts. These allocations vary from county to county.

At various times it has been suggested that Ulster also designate the receipts for use by schools and towns but the Legislature has remained convinced that it will stick by its original plan to put the revenue in the general fund to be applied to reducing the property tax load for all county residents.

Ulster recently received its first quarterly return from the sales tax imposed June 1. It amounted to over a half million dollars, the amount anticipated by many legislators who expected about $2-million a year.

The State Tax Law requires that, unless a county sales tax allocation formula is based on population, it must be agreed upon by the elective governing boards of the county and its cities, with the approval of the state comptroller.

This allows each county to select the formula best suited to its particular needs, according to Comptroller Arthur Levitt.

Nine counties base the distribution on a fixed percentage of the proceeds or a fixed annual amount. They are Cayuga, Fulton, Jefferson, Livingston, Onondaga, Sullivan, Tompkins and Wayne Counties.

Sixteen counties base the allocation on population. They are Monroe, Tioga, Broome, Chautauque, Chemung, Erie and Genesee. Two counties, Niagara and Cortland, use the full taxation of real property as a basis for distribution.

All counties leveling the sales tax, with the exception of Cayuga, retain a portion of the revenues for general county purposes.

Thirteen counties distribute sales tax proceeds to their cities and towns only. They are Broome, Cayuga, Chautauque, Chemung, Clinton, Cortland, Fulton, Genesee, Jefferson, Niagara, Onondaga, Tioga and Tompkins.

Livingston, Wayne and Sullivan Counties distribute revenues from the sales tax to school districts only and the counties of Erie and Monroe to their cities, towns and school districts.

Lefkowitz Will Not Probe Spend Charges

NEW YORK (UPI) — Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz said Monday he would not investigate charges against State Sen. Edward J. Speno, who had requested the inquiry.

Lefkowitz said he had informed Speno this date "that my office is without statutory authority to undertake such an inquiry."

The attorney general released a letter from Speno, R-East Meadow, concerning conflict of interest raised by the Long Island newspaper Newsday. Speno asked Lefkowitz' office to examine and investigate certain Newsday charges against him to determine whether he had violated his public trust as a senator.

Torraca Cautions Arthritis Sufferers

KINGSTON
District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca today cautioned residents of the county who suffer from arthritis against being misled by firms who offer for sale the so-called arthritis bracelet with guarantees that their ills will be cured if worn by the individual.

Thomas F. Mayone, chief investigator for the district attorney's staff, said numerous complaints had been received from arthritis sufferers in Ulster County, who complained that they received no benefits from such an item.

"This appears as a fraud in that the bracelet does not cure arthritis," Mayone said.

Mayone contacted the office of State Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz regarding the complaints from county residents. It was said that a Georgia firm has been advertising the bracelets which sell for about $8.69.

The district attorney's office noted that a release from the office of the Attorney General titled Arthritis Bracelet Makes Comeback, points out that "medieval alchemists who tried to transform base metals into gold have nothing on modern medical quacks who claim to use copper as a cure."

Lefkowitz warned of the sudden revival of popularity of one of the "oldest and most vicious medical swindles on record — the arthritis bracelet."

Despite assurances from the National Arthritis Foundation that there is no basis for assuming that arthritis suffers require copper supplements in any form, the notion that copper applied to or near the skin will activate certain body processes has enjoyed wide and prevalent popularity, it was noted in Lefkowitz's caution.

An influx of complaints to the Bureau of Consumer Frauds and Protection of the Attorney General's office, indicated that "this swindle based on superstition is far from defunct in our modern scientific age."

In warning New Yorkers not to be taken in by extravagant claims of hours of "blessed relief" from arthritis, rheumatism and muscular ailments, Lefkowitz said, "there is as yet no known cure for arthritis and many of its associated problems. I strongly urge arthritis victims to ignore these pitches and instead consult a competent physician who can prescribe a course of treatment best suited to individual needs."

Veterans Day in Ulster County... Largest Response in Recent Years

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

KINGSTON
The response to Veterans Day across Ulster County was reportedly the largest in recent memory.

On Monday, thousands of students participated in salutes to Veterans Day in their classrooms and, in some instances, in special assembly programs. Wide participation was reflected, too, in a proportionately high number of communities, mostly under the sponsorship of veterans organizations such as the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Here in Kingston, brief ceremonies began at 10:30 a.m. in front of City Hall; ended at 11 a.m. sharp with the firing of a salute by an 11-man VFW rifle team. Some 75 people, mostly Legionnaires and VFW members braved grey skies to hear speeches by Ulster County Sheriff William B. Martin and Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo.

Tribute Paid

At City Hall, ceremonies began with the playing of a recording of "God Bless America;" continued with Martin paying tribute to the nation's war dead, and Gallo urging support for President Nixon in his efforts to seek peace in Vietnam.

Five peace people, some carrying war protest signs, were also present at the City Hall rites, but there were no incidents as they stood quietly through the ceremony.

Nearly 500 Legionnaires, VFW members, Scouts and Marine Corps League members marched in Saugerties Tuesday night. It was the largest

Veterans Day parade in Saugerties in years. Later some 300 people assembled in Donlon Auditorium to hear an address by Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. Also on the program was a musical patriotic tribute featuring the local Up With People group and other performers.

Some Sharp Criticism

At Town of Poughkeepsie's Town Hall, an audience of Dutchess County residents heard an address by State Senator Jay P. Rolison Jr. (R, Dutchess-Ulster). The major portion of Rolison's speech was given over to sharp criticism of the protest movement against the Vietnam war. Referring to the Oct. 15 Moratorium, he accused some of his fellow public officials of spending that day "jumping from campus to campus, inflaming our young people and setting themselves up as some sort of Messiah."

The state senator also attacked the group known as Dutchess Students to End the War in Vietnam; said they were "radicals who used the war as an excuse to subvert and disrupt."

Meanwhile, with Veterans Day and its "silent majority" demonstrations over, those same students and others like them planned responses of their own as the "vocal minority" got ready to take to the streets for the second series of activities of the Vietnam Moratorium slated Nov. 13 and 14.

Red Hook Petition Stresses an 'Urgent Need'

RED HOOK
The Red Hook Town Board has been hit by more than its share of petitions and citizens' groups of late, but a new and different kind of petition backed the town's efforts Tuesday night.

Richard Mahoney presented petitions to the Board, with a reported 450 signatures and "more to come," asking for all haste possible in presenting zoning to the public for passage.

The petition stressed the urgent need to adopt planning and zoning ordinances at the earliest possible date and also asked for investigation into the possible forestalling of any new commercial site development in the town until the zoning is a reality.

vocal in the packed board rooms about their aims.

These concerned citizens were almost all property owners who feared that such things as trailer parks, dumps, auto wrecking firms, housing developments, and industries would lower their property value and, in their words, have an "unfavorable impact" on the community.

Sidney Mead, of the Red Hook zoning commission, said that there is "absolutely nothing that can prohibit the establishment of these sites until the zoning has been passed."

Arthur Hand, of the planning board gave a timetable for progress of implementing the presently completed zoning proposal. The Commission will hold its first public hearing at the Red Hook High School cafeteria Nov. 25 at 8 p.m.

A second informational

meeting and public hearing is scheduled for the same place Dec. 2, if a third meeting is necessary, the Town Board will have to hold it Dec. 16.

Mrs. Charles Hoffman said that trailer parks were her nemesis, as her property already is bordered by two and possibly "threatened" with a third. "We haven't finished a third school building yet, and we will need a fourth soon if this keeps up," she said.

Hand noted that the Planning Board can recommend granting or not granting license to build to the Department of Health, but its power is insignificant otherwise.

"We have had several would-be developers visit us in the past year with plans, and by talking things over we have sometimes been able to convince them to change their plans to suit our desires," said Hand. "Of course, they don't have to by law without comprehensive zoning."

The only ordinances controlling land use in the Town of Red Hook currently are those governing mobile homes, but not the location of trailer parks, and one governing the establishment of landfill sites.

23 Freight Cars Jump Tracks in Ulster

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN
TOWN OF ULSTER

Twenty-three cars of a 63-car southbound freight train of Penn Central Railroad derailed this morning near Katrine Lane in the Town of Ulster.

A spokesman at the Penn Central dispatcher's office in Kingston said no complete reports on the mishap had been received. However, it was reported that no one was injured in the mishap.

He said equipment and a crew was proceeding from Selkirk yards to clear the track. The spokesman said two engines were pulling the 63-car train.

Town of Ulster Constable Norman W. Caunitz, who was at the scene said most of the derailed cars contained furniture and clothing. There were no coal or tank cars, he said.

Constable Caunitz said one of the two engines was derailed at the Katrine Lane crossing and this started the chain reaction which turned over a total of 23 cars. He also said there were no injuries reported. Shortly after 10 a.m. Caunitz said he was returning to the scene to clear the area of sightseers because of the impending arrival of the wrecking crew and equipment from Selkirk.

Penn Central also was hit by a 47-car derailment May 1 on the same stretch of track near Boice's Lane, a short distance south of the derailment scene today.

At that time traffic going to declare a dangerous situation. Winds swept away the escaping fumes, reducing the fire hazard. At that time the train was hauling cargo trailers which were dumped all along the right-of-way. Some cars burst open in the mishap, spilling drygoods cargo all along the tracks.

IBM was snarled when IBM employees found the crossing blocked by the mishap. No injuries were reported at that time.

RHINEBECK

Charles D. Montfort, 53, who operates the Montfort Reptile Institute on Schultz Hill Road off Route 9G in this township with his son, Peter, has fully recovered from an Indian Cobra bite he received while applying medication to the snake.

Peter said his father was treating the Cobra on Sunday for a throat infection, when the snake bit him on the left thumb. "We took my father to the Northern Dutchess Hospital where they were prepared to inject anti-venom, and I made inquiries to find where a supply of anti-venom could be obtained," the younger Montfort said.

The elder Montfort complained of slight pains in his throat and he experienced a headache and other symptoms of the presence of venom.

Nurses and physicians stood by prepared to inject the anti-venom if needed.

After a while it was decided that it would not be necessary to inject the anti-venom, Peter said, adding "there apparently was only a small quantity of venom in my father from the bite."

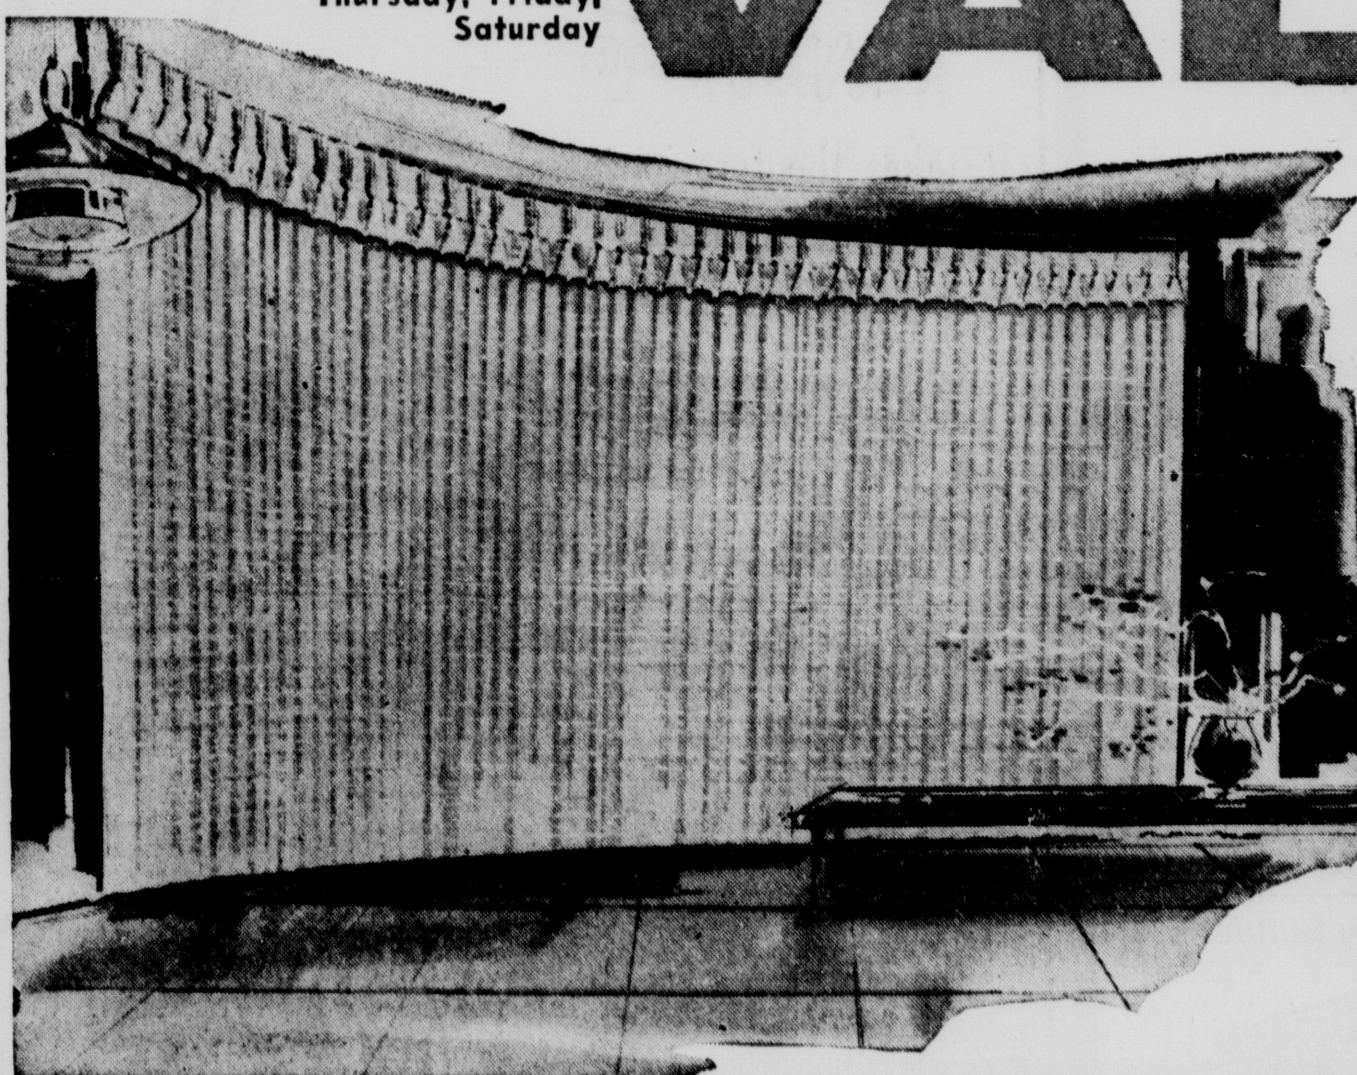

"My father came out of it satisfactorily, with no ill effects," Peter said.

"The Cobra also is enjoying good health," the younger Montfort observed.

In a recent interview with a Freeman reporter, Peter said that he had "not been bitten yet," but he recalled that in 1956 his father was bitten while handling a snake in Florida. At that time he recovered, but he suffered tremendous swelling of the hand, intense pain and shock.

The Montforts conduct tours for school children and the public, who are shown the more than 100 reptiles including snakes, lizards, alligators, a crocodile and a little chimp called Annie.

Peter and his father have taught reptile safety and survival to members of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps and are considered experts in their field.

Ellenville Looking

Manager Still Being Sought

By BRUCE KAUFMAN

ELLENVILLE Although it has been more than two months since the sudden resignation of Village Manager Paul Boucher, the Village of Ellenville is still without a chief administrator.

"We're still looking," says Ellenville Mayor Robert Dowling. "but this time we are going to be particularly careful."

Ellenville has had its share of misfortune with village managers. Since the village adopted the managerial system, about 10 years ago, four men have held the position, three over the course of the past three years.

Boucher resigned amidst controversy in early September basing his decision on political pressure emanating from the five-man board of trustees.

Now this same five man board has assumed the responsibility of governing this village of 7,000 inhabitants with Mayor Dowling coordinating the overall administration.

Dowling, a full time employee at the Catskill Reformatory in Napanoch, is devoting virtually all his spare time to village affairs and is understandably looking forward to the appointment of a new manager.

"We need a manager to keep things moving efficiently and economically," Dowling says. "The manager serves as a vital liaison between the people, the village employees and the board."

The mayor says that village officials are being "exceedingly careful" in their search for a new top administrator.

"Many people have a sour taste in their throat because of our inability to find the right man for the post in recent years," Dowling says.

Following Boucher's resignation, one board member revealed that several of the former managers educational references were unsubstantiated. For this reason, the board is studiously investigating into the backgrounds of the current crop of applicants.

Some people in Ellenville have suggested that the village abandon the managerial system and revert back to the mayor-council form of government.

However, Mayor Dowling and the village's four trustees are firmly in support of the managerial system.

"We've gone through many changes over the past 10 years," Dowling says. "With urban renewal, a housing authority, sewerage, and other municipal services, the village has become a full time job."

Despite the administrative vacuum, the governing of the village has been carried out quite effectively with each member of the board of trustees overseeing the workings of the various departments.

Trustees Rivan Krieger, Walter Gray, Edwin Hoar, and DeWitt Clinton are serving as commissioners of the street, water and sewer, fire, and police departments respectively.

The indefatigable Mayor Dowling is serving as coordinator of the various departmental services.

Rhinebeck to Explore Possibility Of Supplying Water to Staatsburg

By TIM SCHUSTER

RHINEBECK The Rhinebeck Village Board will explore the possibility of supplying water to Staatsburg, it was decided at a Board meeting Tuesday night.

A request by Cesar DeFlora, recent purchaser of the antiquated Staatsburg water plant and about 200 adjacent acres of land, was considered in some detail by the Board with a view to the feasibility of running a water line to the Hyde Park community.

Rhinebeck's water plant, one of the most modern in the area, is capable of processing approximately one million gallons a day and is now using only 350,000 gallons. The original intention of the mammoth capacity of the plant was to go in with either Red Hook or Staatsburg, as well as supply water for a rapidly growing population.

DeFlora said that he has intentions of developing some land in the area. His plant currently services about 450 families, and was formerly owned by the Dinsmore estate.

If the project should prove economically feasible for the village, it could possible lower water rates in the present district.

In other business, the Board passed a resolution to send a letter to the Conference of Mayors and the Dutchess County Board asking for return to local control of jurisdiction over leaf burning.

Mayor Peter Sipperley noted that a car travelling in front of him had almost run over a small child playing in piles of leaves left on the street recently. The village has asked residents to rake their leaves into the streets for easier pickup by the leaf loader.

Eugene Trombini, trustee in charge of village streets, noted that the leaf loader is still picking up wet leaves and will be for another week, at the rate of three or four blocks per day. Attorney Robert Winne noted that there is the possibility of the village being sued and put "on the hook" if a child is hit while playing in the leaves in the streets.

In police business, a resolution was passed authorizing the Mayor, as Commissioner of Police, to initiate interim or emergency procedure with police when feasible.

This resolution followed a discussion of possible use of a village patrolman in uniform during off duty hours at high school basketball games with compensation by the school board.

Contracts Awarded For Village Complex

RHINEBECK The Rhinebeck Village Board awarded contracts totaling $319,448 for construction of the new firehouse-village hall complex Tuesday evening.

All contracts were awarded less deductible alternates, with total of four contracts $341,049. B.C. Potter and Son of Port Ewen won general construction with a bid of $249,000.

Plumbing contract went to T.J. Nocket of Poughkeepsie for $29,378. The same firm won heating and ventilating with a bid of $37,471.

Tallardy of Poughkeepsie will install electricity for $25,200. All contractors will sign formally at 2 p.m. Nov. 21.

Bonds for construction will be handled by First National Bank of Rhinebeck, at 6.6 per cent. The only other bidder, First National Bank of Red Hook, bid 6.7 per cent.

Following the signing of contracts, the old firehouse will be open for bids for sale, due by Jan. 13, 1970 board meeting. Prospective bidders may contact Fire Chief Fred Kilmer.

Low bids were accepted, following the architect's advice.

Indira Gandhi Expelled By India's 'Old Guard'

NEW DELHI (AP) — The "old guard" majority in the top leadership of India's badly split ruling Congress party expelled Prime Minister Indira Gandhi from the party today and ordered Congress members of Parliament to elect a new prime minister.

The party's top policy-making body, the Congress Working Committee, took the unprecedented step against Mrs. Gandhi. She was accused of "spreading indiscipline" in the 84-year-old organization.

The action was not expected to affect Mrs. Gandhi's position as prime minister immediately. Her supporters in the party had announced previously they would not recognize any expulsion orders issued by the party president, Siddavanalli Nijalingappa, whom Mrs. Gandhi has been trying to oust.

A meeting of all Congress members in Parliament is to be held Thursday. It was called in advance of today's action. Mrs. Gandhi was expected to seek a fresh vote of confidence then.

Her supporters claim she has an overwhelming majority among the 431 Congress members in Parliament.

A more serious test is expected after Parliament begins its winter session on Nov. 18. Then Mrs. Gandhi is certain to lose most or all of her 23-seat majority over the opposition parties because of the split within her own party. This will force her to rely on leftist, Communist and independent members to keep her government in office.

The prime minister was giving a luncheon for visiting Hungarian President Pal Losonczy when the expulsion decision was taken, and she was not immediately available for comment.

The Congress Working Committee issued a communique after a three-hour meeting saying the committee was "regretfully obliged" to expel her from the party because she had set up a rival working committee and a rival All-India Congress Committee, which is composed of some 700 delegates from all of the 17 states.

Marcos Reelected In Landslide Vote

MANILA (UPI)—Ferdinand E. Marcos today became the first president of the Philippines re-elected to a second four-year term. He proclaimed he had won a mandate.

Marcos appeared headed for a million-vote landslide victory over Liberal party candidate Sen. Sergio Osmena Jr., who refused to concede what he called "the dirtiest election in our history."

Marcos announced he will soon withdraw all 1,500 Filipino troops from Vietnam so they can fight Huk guerrillas at home.

Counting in Tuesday's national election gave Marcos 1,133,670 votes to Osmena's 726,158. Five million votes remained to be counted.

Running Mate Leads

Marcos running mate, Vice President Fernando Lopez, was leading Genaro Magsaysay 1,135,200 votes to 705,606 in the violence-scarred election.

In the race for the Senate, Marcos' Nacionalista party appeared to have carried six of eight seats at stake and was leading in 64 of the 110 contests for house of representatives posts. The liberals led in 14 districts.

Television projections said Marcos would carry all 10 regions of the archipelago.

After watching returns come in slowly during the night, the 52-year-old war hero this morning proclaimed himself the first president in the 23-year postwar history of the Philippines to be re-elected.

Communist China Come Closer But Still Losing Proposition

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Communist China came closer but still lost this year's vote on ousting Nationalist China from the United Nations and bringing in Peking representatives instead.

The General Assembly gave 48 votes to the Communist regime and 56 to the Nationalist government Tuesday, with 21 abstentions. Peking would have needed a two-thirds majority for membership.

This was four more affirmative votes for Peking than it obtained last year. The 1968 resolution favoring the Communists over the Nationalists received 44 votes, with 58 opposed and 23 abstentions.

Only one nation, Indonesia, did not participate in the roll call vote in the 126-nation assembly. The Jakarta government also was absent during last year's balloting on the question.

Before the vote on membership, a resolution supported by the United States declaring the proposal an "important question" requiring a two-thirds majority was carried 71-48 with 4 abstentions. Three nations—Indonesia, Kuwait and Equatorial Guinea—did not vote.

The vote on this question was nearly unchanged from last year when 73 were in favor, 47 opposed and five countries abstained. Western diplomats pointed out that while Peking gained a few votes on the actual resolution to unseat the Nationalists, this was the one that really counted.

Their reasoning was that so long as this balloting procedure is followed, the vote on whether the China representation issue is an "important question" thus requiring a two-thirds majority for passage, is really the decisive one.

According to this thinking, the supporters of Nationalist China this year actually had a 23-vote edge in their favor, the margin on the "important issue" question, rather than the 8-vote margin on the seating motion itself.

Unannounced Murders Is Threat of Zodiac

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The "Zodiac" killer broke a monthlong silence Tuesday to announce by letters and cryptograms to a newspaper he will "no longer announced to anyone when I commit my murders."

The boasting slayer, previously connected with five killings in the San Francisco Bay area since last December, claimed seven victims.

In occasionally misspelled correspondence to the San Francisco Chronicle, Zodiac said his future murders "shall look like routine robberies, killings of anger, & a few fake accidents, etc."

A postscript to one of his letters indicated he was displeased by a dwindling of public attention since he included a piece of a slain cab driver's blood-stained shirt in a letter one month ago.

"Could you print this new cipher on your front page?" he asked. "I get awfully lonely when I am ignored, so lonely I could do my thing!!!!!!"

Then in a large, scrawled handwriting—which contrasted with his usual small printing—Zodiac added, "And I can't do a thing with it!"

The latest correspondence included a page filled with strange ciphers, a rambling letter, a note on a comic greeting card—and another piece of the cab driver's shirt.

A Sound Investment

The Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce embarks on a new year with a record of accomplishments for the past 12 months that augurs well for this vital area community organization. Far surpassing expectations of the most optimistic members, the past year's program of action and achievement is a reward to the directors, committee members and staff for their indefatigable efforts and dedication.

The remarkable diversity of interests and enlarged scope of the Kingston Area C. of C. reaches into all aspects of community life with a most effective force to meet the needs and the challenges confronting the area. This work by the enthusiastic committees of the Chamber has brought forth results which now must be back up by civic interest and money. Implementation of their program is needed if we are to go forward as a strong, progressive community.

All that is required now for greater accomplishment by this growing Chamber is a closer partnership, a joint trusteeship between business interests, including the professions, public officials and the people.

The many notable projects undertaken by the Chamber give new and specific direction for a healthy business climate, which is essential for the welfare of the area. But we also must have community effort. We must have a firm desire to make this area better by improving it. We must believe that this community has a great future. We must keep this spirit alive and encourage it in every way.

It is well to remember that the well-being of a community is measured by the attitudes of its people. Now is the time to recognize our assets, our great potential. Now is the time to take a positive attitude in the tone of the community.

The Chamber is comprised of an energetic group which has great faith in the community and are at work to improve its economy and its opportunities. This work represents desire and faith. The thinking is positive and the movement is forward.

The current membership drive affords all area residents an opportunity to invest in the future of Kingston and the surrounding area. Here is a blue chip investment that will pay big dividends and gain in value in the year's ahead.

Agnew Riding High

It is wishful thinking on the part of certain columnists who write that Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has become a liability to the President. No less an authority than Republican National Chairman Rogers C. B. Morton declared that he did not think there would be any effort to drop Agnew from the ticket in 1972.

Morton said further than President Nixon is "very happy" with Agnew. "You can talk all you want, but if you read the mail, Agnew is getting more people for him than against him," Morton added. He confessed he had doubts about Agnew's speeches on critics of the Vietnam war, until he started hearing from the people. That convinced him that Agnew is a real asset to the administration.

Agnew has been putting in words what a lot of people have been thinking. He has developed into the kind of gut fighting politician that Richard Nixon was as a member of Congress. He is saying things the President can't say, and infuriating the critics not only of the war but of the administration. Morton sized up the political picture correctly.

Henry J. Taylor Says

General Motors Is Bellwether

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

Behind the scenes, European funds are beginning to flow back heavily into the American stock markets. And with 25 million American shareholders having a direct stake in our stocks, and 82 million more an indirect stake, this renewed demand means more than shows on the surface.

For prices are made by supply and demand, not values. There is no such thing as "intrinsic" in the stock market. Values change if conditions change, and, of course, the market is always anticipating the future, not reflecting the present.

The market mirrors the hopes and fears of worldwide millions. If the worldwide millions want money or bonds or anything more than stocks, or if uncertainty grips them, the law of supply and demand overrides everything. And vice versa.

Last year foreign purchases of our stocks soared to $2.27 billion compared with only $257 million in 1967. In January this year they hit an all-time high for any one month of $362 million and were decisive in our market prices. By April they tapered off to $74 million and subsequently foreigners sold at times more than they bought, frightened as a rabbit bolting into its hole.

Most European fund managers like our market better than any of their own because for the past 27 years it has gone up at an average annual rate of 8½ per cent. They see us now in the seventh large speculative period since the end of World War II. And the Swiss bankers, in turn, readily admitting the oversimplification, have always quietly sworn by a bellwether stock as their American market indicator. It is General Motors.

The company itself is secondary, although mighty General Motors does supply about 52 per cent of our domestic cars, is the world's business, and has 285 million shares outstanding among nearly 14 million shareholders. Their bellwether conviction really rests on the American stock market indications shown by GM's stock during the past 40 years.

Wars and the stock market have something in common. The change in the trend takes place long before it is apparent. But experienced investors agree that nobody knows, or can know, the start of the turn at the time of the turn and that the hardest task — incomparably the hardest — is to decide whether the trend has changed.

As timing means everything in successful investing, this fact represents the fundamental challenge. The successful investor cannot wait until the trend's change is apparent and still invest to best advantage. Reversely, because all markets are built on a great many illusions, he may be disastrously hooked by low-looking prices that prove high indeed, and create ghastly losses, if the trend has not changed.

In counting on General Motors as a bellwether, Swiss bankers claim that, if after four or five months of downturn in the American market GM does not make a new intermediate low, it indicates that the trend has turned. On the other hand, runs their claim, when the trend here has been upward for four or five months and General Motors keeps failing to make new high for the move — watch out. Before too long the American market itself will turn down.

Even so, a close look at this revealing stock — which sold as low as $1.25 in 1932 — is enough to shatter the nerves of an astronaut. Adjusting all prices for GM's 2-for-1 stock split in 1950 and 3-for-1 split in 1955, bonanza GM had still reached only 12½ by November 9, 1936. By March 31, 1938, it was back to $4.25. It sold as low as $4.75 in 1941 and even as late as 1948, a full seven years later, you could buy all the GM in town for under nine. Then the great demand movement began.

GM made a high of 54 on November 14, 1955, never sold lower than 33½ by December 19, 1957, made a new high of 91½ on October 29, 1963, and finally 113½ on October 27, 1965. Then the egg hit the fan. GM fell to 65½ on December 30, 1966 — a fall of 48 points in 14 months, or 13.6 billion — yes, billion — dollars.

Even bellwether GM, itself, proves again that making money in the market is very difficult — very — over the long haul, and is never made (for long) by those who leap before they look or (timing again) act too soon or too late.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

There is a man who earns $2,000,000 a year from big game fishing without ever going near the water. He is Al Pfeuger, Jr., the world's most affluent taxidermist. He mounts the monumental fish that men want to see hanging from the game-room wall.

A couple of years ago, my wife and I were fishing off Memory Rock, in the Bahamas, when she caught a sizable African pompano. We didn't know what it was; and he didn't know what he was. When someone told us it was a rare fish to catch in Bahama waters, she asked me to send it to Al Pfeuger to have it mounted for the patio wall.

A fish requires four to six months to cure and finish, and the cost comes to $2.25 an inch. Once, Kelly almost boated a 17-foot lemon shark. I figured the cost at about $459, and I began to root for the shark to throw the hook and get away. She fought him standstill and he swam under the boat, tossed his head, and cut the line on the keel of the boat.

If you like game fishing, you probably think of Ernest Hemingway and Zane Grey. They could afford to be patient, waiting for the big billfish. Grey gave his away — most of them were caught off New Zealand, but Hem had the bluebills stuffed and mounted by Al Pfeuger. Sometimes, his room made visitors feel that they were walking along the bottom of an aquarium.

One fisherman, out of Port Everglades, Florida, caught a beef bone. It was, to be specious, neither fish nor fowl, but he had it mounted and set up on a wall. Another had his hook pierce an old board. He had the board mounted. This is to let you know, as subtly as I can, that there are all kinds of dingalings in boats.

The champ of them all — and I will not give his name — wanted to make a motion picture and he acquired a whale with a 25-foot head. He sent it to Pfeuger with instructions to reprint it with the proper colors and to fit a hydraulic engine inside so that it could open and close its mouth.

The man I envy is Alfred Glassell, of Houston, Texas, who went out to sea one day off Cabo Blanco, Peru, and caught the world's record all-tackle black marlin at 1560 pounds. This catch was so extraordinary that it now hangs in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

Pfeuger's Phactory is in Hallandale, Florida. He has 185 employees. The prize fish are dumped on a loading dock where house flies inspect them. From there, they go to a freezer. When they are as stiff as a saloon keeper on his day off, they are opened, gutted, and the meat of the fish is carved and scraped out until there is nothing left except the skin.

From the rafters in Pfeuger's place, 10,000 fish of all kinds and sizes hang from high board. When the oil has dried from the skin, the color of the fish has faded too. The workers take the fish down, place him in a mold common to his species, and stuff him with sawdust.

The fish skin is wrapped around him so that he looks fairly natural. If the fish has holes from foul hooking or gaffing, these are plugged with plastic until he assumes life-like proportion. His tail and fins are removed; the sawdust is dug out, and a mixture of paper-mache and burlap is set inside.

A metal hanger is screwed into his back for wall display later, and the fish is painted white. It is then sent to the fish artists, who study his type, and air brush all the scales onto his white sides, insert yellow eyes, paint him from head to tail until he looks better than lifelike.

The largest fish Pfeuger ever worked on was the head of a white shark estimated to weigh 4,500 pounds. The smallest was a two-inch bone fish, Herbert Hoover, who was a great bone fisherman, never had one mounted. Bing Crosby caught a 1-pound salmon on a little fly rod and had the creature mounted. Ted Williams, who is mad about tarpon fishing, hooked into a 126-pounder and sent it to Pfeuger.

Once, when I fished off Oahu, we found a dead cow at sea and the ocean chummed with big bull dolphins. They were so numerous that we used bamboo poles and shankless hooks, just dropping the hook aft and horsing the fish in over our heads.

The captain made the mistake of coming out of the cabin as I flipped one over my head. He caught it in the kisser. If Pfeuger can mount that canary yellow and blue dolphin, with the boat captain's face behind it, I will mail both to him at once.

Each, believe me, is nothing without the other.

Jack Anderson Says Attorney General Clark Wanted To Embarrass the Republicans

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court, impatient over 15 years of dawdling by some school districts, has now laid down the law. School segregation must cease "at once." The Court's ire is directed largely at the Justice Department, which has moved against segregated schools at the speed of a lumbering police wagon with the siren blaring, but the brakes on.

The shameful record is spelled out in documents, which the Democrats' last Attorney General wanted to leave behind as an embarrassment to the Republicans. The record, however, turned out to be so embarrassing to the Democrats that Ramsey Clark, the aforesaid Attorney General, sheepishly abandoned the whole project.

This column has now obtained copies of the suppressed documents.

Sensing a Republican victory, Clark decided a month before the November, 1968, election to prepare a series of position papers to put the incoming President on the spot. The plan was explained by Commissioner of Education Harold Howe II to Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Wilbur Cohen in a confidential memo dated Oct. 10, 1968.

Plan That Backfired

"I want you to be informed," wrote Howe, "about some developments that have been stirred up by Ramsey Clark. He telephoned me the other day and asked me to come over to discuss with him the development of a position paper, which this administration could have behind it in the broad area of civil rights enforcement."

"Ramsey, of course, is thinking about housing, employment and a variety of other areas as well as education. But in his view, education is the major area of concern as far as the possibility of the next administration not picking up the ball is concerned."

The Attorney General's plan, Howe pointed out, "would create a visible plateau of purpose and understanding to which outside groups like the NAACP and others could refer as they continue to needle the new administration just as they have needed us."

The first draft, completed Oct. 30, 1968, outlined the history of school desegregation and concluded: "In 1967-68, 93 per cent of the Negro students (in the 11 Southern states) were still assigned to Negro schools. Desegregation of these systems will require a greater effort than the government has given in the past."

This awkward statistic was brushed over in the subsequent drafts. But a Nov. 12, 1968, draft still contained this troubling report on segregation in the North: "A preliminary and incomplete summary of HEW's 1967-68 national report on racial patterns in schools indicates that in the Northern states two-thirds of the Negro, Puerto Rican and Mexican-American students attend schools at which more than half of the students are from these minority groups."

"The survey also shows that the number of Negro teachers is low, and Spanish-American teachers even lower. The few who are employed are usually assigned to the minority group schools."

Political Intervention

The Nov. 12 document also admonished: "Every effort should be made to stop new racial discrimination in the building of new schools. . . . HEW should seek greater authority to deal directly with racial imbalance."

This candid explanation for the delay in enforcing school integration was eliminated from later drafts: "In many cases, school officials would turn to political leaders for help, and while the political leaders put the heat on HEW, the local officials delayed."

On Dec. 13, 1968, St. John Barrett, HEW's deputy general counsel, submitted another revision to his boss, Alanson W. Willcox.

"This is the latest revision of the school desegregation position paper," wrote Barrett. "In some ways, I think it is improved, but I think it still misfires. I understand it will probably be going through further revision, although I am not now convinced that it is going to serve any real purpose."

Ingrained Prejudice

This version still confessed: "In the Deep South, where the compliance program in elementary and secondary progress is still slow. . . . No single court decision — or collection of decisions — can change the deeply ingrained attitudes on race that still prevail in our schools as in society as a whole. . . .

"A strong and unified beginning has been made — in an atmosphere often openly and acutely hostile — and the momentum for change is growing. But the dimensions of the challenge are staggering: hundreds of years, millions of children, billions of dollars, thousands of schools."

This wasn't a picture that Clark wanted to make public. On the eve of President Nixon's inauguration, the desegregation paper still hadn't been approved. Cohen made a last-minute inquiry and received this memo from Barrett, dated Jan. 7, 1969:

"You asked me what happened to the position paper that was being drafted on school desegregation for you and the Attorney General. I am told that at the last meeting of the committee working on it, the Justice people were so discouraged with the current draft they said they could not recommend it to the Attorney General, and the project seems to have died."

Note: George Wallace has decided, according to insiders, to make the Supreme Court's desegregation decree the big issue in his campaign next year to regain the governorship of Alabama. Gov. Lester Maddox would like to do the same thing in Georgia, but the state constitution prohibits him from running for another term. To get around the constitution, he may follow Wallace's precedent and run his wife for governor.

West Is Victor Over Russia In Turkey's General Elections

By LEON DENNEN

NEA Foreign News Analyst

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (NEA) — The debate about Vietnam should not obscure the results already achieved by President Nixon's pragmatic foreign policy in some of the world's strategic areas.

Turkey is a case in point. A key country in the Mediterranean — where the Russians are currently expanding their navy — it is also a force for some stability in the turbulent Middle East.

Yet Turkey's recent general elections received little attention in the Western press, this despite the fact that they resulted in a victory for the moderate Justice party and returned to power Premier Suleyman Demirel who is pro-American and a firm supporter of NATO.

Demirel's success was especially significant because the Turks were at odds with their Western allies, particularly with the United States, and seemed to be seeking closer ties with Moscow.

Traditional American-Turkish friendship was badly strained during the "missile crisis" of 1962 when former Soviet Premier Krushchev, yielding to Washington's demands, dismantled Russia's rocket bases in Cuba, but in turn demanded the removal of American rocket bases in Turkey.

President Kennedy initially refused Moscow's condition for the fulfillment of American demands. But U.S. bases in Turkey were nevertheless removed later, giving rise to uncertainty in Ankara's pro-American government and among the people.

However, it was during the conflict over Cyprus that American relations with Turkey reached a critical point. Ankara considered that in Turkey's dispute with Greece she had not received adequate support from Washington.

For the Russians this was an opportunity not to be missed. They immediately took up a position favorable to Turkey on the Cyprus question and offered Ankara military, technical and economic aid.

The Russians also began to press the Turks to withdraw from NATO by resorting to their usual policy of the "carrot and the stick." Even as they were seeking friendlier relations with Ankara, the Turkish Workers' party, financed and manipulated by Moscow, denounced Demirel's pro-Western policy as "treason to the nation" and staged violent anti-American demonstrations.

Thus, the important thing about Turkey's general elections is that the pro-American Justice party gained a majority in the Grand National Assembly while the pro-Russian parties, including the mildly leftist Republican party lost much ground.

There were, of course, domestic reasons for the victory of the Justice party but there is no doubt that Nixon's diplomacy contributed substantially to Demirel's success.

In line with his policy of noninvolvement, Nixon reversed the practice of previous administrations and offered the Turks aid without strings attached. He also eliminated arrogant American interference in Turkey's internal affairs.

Policy Will Be Firm, Cool

By RAY CROMLEY,

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In a private meeting the other day, a young man who had been a leader in one of the major demonstrations this year said that he was convinced it would be impossible to keep violence out of the Nov. 14-15 protests, no matter how determined the leadership and regardless of the number of youth marshals assigned to keep order.

It is his belief — and his experience in the Inauguration Day demonstrations in January, when he was a marshal for the demonstrators — that if one group of protesters decides to "go violent" no leadership can stop them.

If this young man is right, and if the police and military forces "keep their cool," the reading in White House circles is that this violence will result in a strong reaction of sympathy for President Nixon.

Administration strategy is based on the premise that violence is quite likely to occur, and it's based on the thesis that the police, the National Guard and the troops must not overreact. That is, the police and the troops have been instructed to take insults and rock throwing in stride. They are to be as polite as possible. They are to use only that minimum force necessary to protect public property and the safety of citizens, preserve a minimum of order and to block the way to areas the government has declared out of bounds.

The analysis at the Pentagon is that violence by the demonstrators, coupled with restraint by the troops during the march on the Pentagon in October, 1967, boomeranged against the marchers and led to a decline in public sympathy for them.

The belief here in influential government circles is that police reaction as at Chicago during the Democratic convention last year, however understandable in view of the strong provocation and the expert "police baiting," was nevertheless "counterproductive." That is, they believe it won converts for the demonstrators.

The administration is determined not to make this mistake.

For the information arriving here is that, however peaceful the majority of the marchers may be on Nov. 14-15, there will be a significant group, small but determined, which believes that only through violence great enough to bring about a violent reaction from "the Establishment" can they win the masses of new converts and the publicity they require to keep up the momentum of their movements.

33 Elmendorf Street
Kingston, New York
November 3, 1969
Editor, The Freeman:

Food Additives
In the Kingston Freeman Oct. 27th appeared an article to the effect that over six hundred food additives were now on the market without laboratory tests for safety.

There is a furor now relative to monosodium glutamate in processed baby foods and cyclamates in dietary cola beverages and many other chemicals too numerous to mention that have as yet to be challenged such as saccharine (sugar substitute) and others.

The article elaborates that the F.D.A. (Food and Drug Administration) conceded it has no checked against new scientific evidence that could indicate health hazards and that inspectors lack legal authority to check company records for unsanctioned additives.

I would like to know since the F.D.A. claims to Congress that it lacks sufficient funds to discharge its duties relative to such matters vital to our health — why after Congress granted more money; that four million dollars was spent to discredit the use of natural organic food vitamin supplements sold by health food stores with the idea of controlling the potency of these vitamins and stating they were not necessary, a waste of public money etc., when such appropriation should have been used for testing chemicals in our food additives that could endanger our health, safety and welfare. Why?

The article further stated that over 2,000 chemicals are used for the purpose of food additives as stated by the National Academy of Service to retard spoilage, enhance flavor, and have a pretty look in the market to attract the customer.

In view of these facts, and I assume they are true, I think the F.D.A. which is the agency that is supposed to be the guardian of our health relative to fortified foods for nutrition and human needs, has failed at the job because all chemicals should be tested to confirm the safety of such additives.

Is this why Congress has the F.D.A. on the carpet?
A good parent certainly wouldn't give their children something that they didn't know about.

The labeling on the package would do a better job in nutritiously feeding American people to know what to avoid in each individual case.

For example, hot dogs (frankfurters) are only 10 per cent protein 30 per cent fat 60 per cent water. Since some teenagers thrive on this diet, how much protein are they getting?

I agree with Senator McGovern of the great state of South Dakota that the time has come and overdue for the F.D.A. to cooperate relative to these dangers for our safety and health as well as the food industry and our government itself.

Another important point to remember is that the preservation of health and guarding the health of our people is more important than embalming and chemicalizing food on the shelf to make it last longer, more palatable without any knowledge of such chemical action on body metabolism.

I also agree with the South Dakota Senator which he stated that the food industry should get into the field of nutrition education combined with a clear labeling process so that we not only know what we are eating but have some indication through advertising what is healthful to eat.

It has been said in many health and nutritional journals that we are the best fed and yet the most undernourished country in the world. It could be true.

Is it because we are bombarding our environment of soil and food with dangerous chemicals that destroy nutritive value of food ever before it reaches our system of blood stream and digestion.

Sincerely,
EDWIN J. HIGBY

Editor, The Freeman:
Nixon's War Supporters

Over the years many excuses have been given for our invasion of South Vietnam. The latest excuse given is that if we were to withdraw, millions upon millions of South Vietnamese would be immediately killed. Therefore, these supporters of Nixon's War say, we must remain in Vietnam to save lives.

This argument conveniently overlooks the fact that our intervention in Vietnam has already produced hundreds of thousands of innocent victims. One Senator estimated that we cause a hundred thousand innocent casualties each year in Vietnam. The continual and unrestricted bombing in South Vietnam has produced millions of refugees who can barely exist on the largesse of the Saigon regime.

But, just who promises that millions of Vietnamese will be slaughtered? Certainly not the Provisional Revolutionary Government of the Republic of South Vietnam. Their program promises: "To encourage welcome and properly reward those officers and men of the puppet army and police and those functionaries of the puppet administration who cross over to the side of the people after accomplishing meritorious deeds, to grant special encouragement and rewards to those puppet army and police units that go over to the Provisional Revolutionary Government. To show leniency and refrain from any discrimination against those guilty persons who repent and rejoin the ranks of the people; those who will have accomplished meritorious deeds shall be treated accordingly."

Since the foregoing quote is not a general amnesty, the question of salvaging the lives of our "allies" still remains. But that's President Nixon's problem. I'm sure he'll handle it with his usual brilliance. Still, "President" Thieu should continue to live in Saigon's airport so he can skip the country on five minutes notice.

I hope that the Catholic War Veterans will listen to Bishop Sheen's call for immediate withdrawal from Vietnam.

Sincerely,
RONALD SOBIERAJ

'In Flanders Field'
Editor, The Freeman:

In reading over and thinking about the poem "In Flanders Field" last night, it seemed that I was impelled to write the following lines as an addenda to that poem. To me, it seems particularly fitting on this Veteran's Day 1969, in light of what happened a short month ago, and is likely to repeat itself this week.

We are AWAKE! The faith you broke,
And demonstrating, sought to damn
Our brothers, dead in Viet Nam
Who also fought Oppression's yoke.

And we shall roam 'til disgrace yields
And honors ALL who wake and weep.
And, tortured, find they cannot sleep
In Flanders, or in other fields.

O' craven race, bow to the foe!
You cannot catch the Torch we throw.
Yield up your Freedom, and in shame
Return that Torch with smothered flame
To Flanders field.

Very truly yours,
ALTON BOYCE

Agnew Aids GOP Strategy in South

By GEORGE GALLUP

Copyright, 1969, American Institute of Public Opinion. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with written consent of copyright holders.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 8. — Historians will undoubtedly record that Richard Nixon was the first Republican president of this century to develop an aggressive political strategy to build the Republican party in the South.

An important reason for this is that Nixon owes his election in 1968 largely to the shift of traditionally Democratic states in the South to the Republican column.

As a matter of fact, in the 37 states outside the South, Hubert Humphrey actually polled more popular votes than did Nixon. It was in the South, where Nixon ran ahead of both Humphrey and Wallace, that he won enough votes to give him a slight lead nationally in popular votes.

Agnew Key Factor
Nixon's selection of Spiro Agnew as his running mate, which came as a surprise to many Republican stalwarts, actually turned out to be one of the most important factors in his winning many Southern states and the election itself.

In terms of the GOP's Southern strategy, Agnew's role from now on appears to be clearcut. His job undoubtedly will be to continue to improve the Republican party image in the South and hopefully, at the same time, to reduce the wide appeal of George Wallace.

South Has Been GOP Bottleneck
The immediate objective is the coming congressional election. While Agnew has drawn much criticism for his reference to "impudent snobs," and other remarks made about demonstrators in the recent Vietnam moratorium, the evidence indicates that his recent statements and actions have not hurt his popularity nationally or in the 13 Southern states. A survey completed only Wednesday of this week, following the Supreme Court's ruling calling for immediate desegregation, shows Vice President Agnew with a higher rating than his previous one in July.

Just before last fall's presidential election, Agnew received a "highly favorable" rating of 13 per cent from citizens in the South, and for the country as a whole a rating of 14 per cent. By July of this year, the Agnew figures had climbed to 18 per cent in the South and 17 per cent nationally, and in the latest survey it is 25 in the South and 19 nationally.

The following tables show the trend for Agnew and Wallace, as well as for Nixon, since Oct. 1968, in the nation as a whole and in the South only. The ratings are based on a 10-point attitude scale. The top two positions on the scale are combined to represent the "highly favorable" category. These ratings should not be confused with the vote given these men in trial heat contests.

Interviewing for the latest survey began Friday, Oct. 31 and was completed last Wednesday. To date, a total of 1366 persons have been interviewed in person in more than 300 localities. The sample when complete will include a minimum of 1500 persons.

The measuring device used in the survey is called the Stapel Scalometer and consists of number squares going from plus five — or someone liked very much — all the way down to minus five — or someone disliked very much. Each respondent is asked to indicate the feelings that best describes his feelings about a particular person.

1,500 Curiosity Seekers, But No Explosion This Year

VENICE CENTER, N.Y. (AP) — They came from hundreds of miles away to stand in chilling temperatures under an overcast sky and watch an alfalfa field, hoping that someone or something would repeat the mysterious explosions that have left craters in the black earth of Harold Lacey's farm for the last three years.

But the appointed hour came and went, and the only explosion was a population explosion. About 1,500 curiosity seekers, newsmen and scientists answered the call of the unknown Tuesday night and early today, pierced the cold night with flashlights and wandered over the damp field in hopes of being near—but not too near—the spot where this year's explosion of the unidentified flying object would have occurred if it had been on schedule.

It would have been the fourth in as many years on the Lacey farm near this Southern Cayuga County community. The others were shortly after midnight, all on Nov. 12. Though experts have investigated the holes left by the window-rattling blasts, none has any explanation as to their origin.

The Lacey's would prefer not to be the center of so much attention.

"I hope it happens, right where it's supposed to happen so all the experts and the bigwigs get to see it for themselves and we can end all this once and for all," Mrs. Lacey said Tuesday.

"It's getting to be a little monotonous," said Lacey, reminiscing over the carnival-like curious and the concerned.

—There have been advocates of the unidentified flying object UFO theories who have invaded the Lacey's home complete with pictures from other unexplained phenomena.

—There have been newsmen with their endless questions, their publicity.

—There have been skeptics. One asked if he could open a hot dog stand to accommodate this year's crowd.

—There have been experts—Cornell University scientists, military men and police—who examined the craters and came away shaking their heads.

Some came a day early to watch. Monday night, they said, would be the night because last year was leap year so the explosion would come a day earlier this year. But Monday night was quiet.

Tuesday night they came to Lacey's 250-acre farm like a motorized locust hoard. Six State Police troopers were on hand to untangle traffic snarls as cars bounced along country roads toward the site. Rain had turned the dirt roads into a mass of muddy potholes.

Cars were parked up to two miles away from the Lacey home, which sits at the intersection of two roads.

People covered almost every piece of farm machinery as they strained for the best view of the expected blast. For about a half hour, two small planes circled overhead.

At the height of the traffic jam, two of Lacey's cows stared through the fence in obvious bewilderment.

One trooper said the normal traffic flow for the area at that time might be one car.

The warmly-dressed crowd hollered jokes at each other and shifted around in noisy anticipation until shortly after midnight.

As 12:30 a.m. approached the crowd became hushed and waited.

When no resounding shock waves of the kind that have been heard up to 15 miles away greeted their ears, they began honking their car horns as if to remind the mysterious source of the explosions that they had come to see.

The disappointed crowd began to leave around 1 a.m. As one man put it, "The great Venice boom has joined the silent majority."

Not everyone was disappointed. "In one way, I'm glad it didn't happen," Lacey said, "but..." He shrugged his shoulders and said he wished the blasts had come and blown away all the skepticism and hullabaloo.

Then he pointed out that the past three explosions occurred in isolated areas and the craters, which measured up to 15 feet across and five feet deep, had always been discovered the following day.

Mrs. Lacey said she hoped it would all be forgotten.

"After all, we're the ones who had to fill in that hole each year," she said.

'Guest' Sought For Bed Fire On Andrew St.

KINGSTON

City police are looking for an "unregistered guest" who apparently set off a bed fire Tuesday afternoon at 9 Andrew Street, an unoccupied building owned by the Kingston Library. The building was the site of another blaze last Thursday, also of incendiary type, officials said.

Firemen said Tuesday's blaze filled the two-story building with smoke after a bed on the first floor flamed up. The cause was said to have been incendiary, apparently set by an intruder.

The same building was filled with smoke last Thursday when trash and garbage in the basement was set on fire, authorities said.

Engine One from Central Station rushed to the building at 3:45 p.m. Tuesday under the command of Deputy Chief Glyn Southard.

8 S. Korean Army Officers Die in Crash

SAIGON (UPI)—Eight South Korean army officers were killed Tuesday when their jet transport plane crashed during a storm near Qui Nhon, 248 miles northeast of Saigon.

Korean spokesman said five of the officers, including three full colonels, were members of the staff of Lt. Gen. Lee Sae Ho, commander of South Korea's 60,000-man force in South Vietnam.

They were visiting subordinate units to determine their combat readiness for a Communist winter offensive Allied commanders said began Nov. 3. The spokesman blamed the crash of the U21 aircraft on the weather.

A Change of Face

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Jacques Papillon, a Montreal plastic surgeon, says 77 per cent of women seeking face-lifts are under 55 years of age, and 20 per cent are under 40. Effects of the operation usually last 10 to 15 years. Complicated facial improvements may take three to five years to complete as surgery can take place only once a year to allow incision scars to heal.

Felsway Increase

The Felsway Corporation, which operates a store in the Kingston area, reports sales for the five weeks ended Nov. 1 showed an increase of 30 per cent from $2,088,000 in 1968 to $2,707,000 this year. Sales for 35 weeks ended on Nov. 1 totaled $17,440,000 a 23 per cent increase over the 1968 total of $14,180,000.

Felsway operates shoe stores under the names Shoe-Town and Forsythe. The corporation's fiscal year began on March 2.

AWOL Charge

City police detectives arrested James Decker, 20, of 24 McEntee Street, Kingston, Tuesday on a warrant charging him with being absent without leave from the U.S. Army. Decker was turned over to state troopers to await Army authorities.

McDowell, Majestic Differ On the Gardiner Savings

GARDINER surplus funds were derived from the town dump fund ($3,000), the highway No. 1 fund ($1,400), and the general fund ($5,500). In addition, the justice proposed actual budget cuts totalling $4,000, but these were rejected by the board after lengthy discussion.

McDowell said that allowing the over-burdened taxpayers in the town a cut in their taxes was more important than maintaining the surplus monies.

Contacted later, Gardiner Supervisor George Majestic called McDowell's account of the budget meeting proceedings a distortion of the actual events.

Majestic said that the board was prepared to make the taxation will only have to be increased by three per cent.

McDowell explained that the McDowell said that he attempted to make a similar proposal at the Town Board's preliminary budget meeting in October, but that it was turned down by the board.

Majestic countered that it was, at that time, too early to ascertain the actual amount of the various surplus funds.

The Gardiner supervisor explained that the board maintains these surplus funds to cover unanticipated expenses and that while they are not being used are invested with other idle monies.

ham, was held on a charge of criminal sale of LSD.

All defendants were committed to jail pending arraignment in county court. A juvenile also was taken into custody in Greene County.

Authorities said Enzmann, who was arrested in Highland, and two friends, Larry Gordon, 20, of 109 East 153rd Street, New York City, and Louis LaSalle, 21, also of New York, were nabbed by troopers outside Enzmann's home as they prepared to go hunting. Gordon and LaSalle were held on charges of criminal possession of narcotics.

Troopers went to a house in New Paltz to arrest a man reportedly indicted for sale of narcotics, but the suspect was not there. As authorities surrounded the house, two pistols were thrown from windows, police said.

Troopers rushed into the residence armed with search warrants. They found two men and a girl inside and they arrested the trio on charges of criminal possession of dangerous weapons. They were identified as Wilfred J. Gormier, 25, of 54 Scott Street, East Hartford, Conn.; Frederick Phillips, 19, of 135 South Chestnut Street, New Paltz and Miss Hollace Staren, 19, of 188 North Chestnut Street, Massapequa, L. I. They were held for arraignment before Town Justice Arthur A. Reilly.

After troopers arrested Ward, they found him in possession of $1,400 in cash.

When they went to the home of Terry Barnum, who was accused of being a "pusher," troopers found 18-year-old Maryann Tozzi, 18, of River Road, Tilton, N. Y. She was arrested on a charge of criminal possession of dangerous drugs.

The crackdown today in the two counties climaxed a month-long investigation directed by Major John F. Monahan, commander of Troop F, Captain Phillip Emden, District Attorney Joseph P. Torracca, investigators Shannon and Charles Teelon, Senior CBI Investigator M. P. Mattera of Leeds, Investigator Harold T. Bowers and Deputy Henry Newmann of Sheriff William B. Martin's staff and other state police officials.

Today's drive against narcotics pushers and users suspects was the third conducted in Ulster County in seven months. State Police officials and the district attorney's office conducted massive raids in April and August, netting more than 60 defendants.

Participating in planning and conducting the raids were Assistant District Attorneys Ellen Donovan and Joseph Traficanti.

In other narcotics raids, authorities upstate arrested close to three dozen persons, largely young people. At least 18, including Jonathan Burns, nephew of State Democratic Chairman Burns, were seized in Broome County. Several college students were among those arrested.

NEW YORK (UPD)—Stocks opened mixed today in moderately active trading.

Analysts note that there is little in the news background to set off a definite trend on Wall Street, although they point out that airlines may get special attention as a result of some major industry news. Northwest, a wealthy airline, and Northeast, one of the poorest, have reached a tentative agreement to merge.

Morton Lobbying To Improve PO

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Like many Americans, former Sen. Thruston B. Morton, R-Ky., thinks the U.S. mail service is deplorable.

The difference is that he is busy lobbying for improvement. He thinks the best way is for Congress to convert the post office into a nonprofit government corporation.

Morton held a small luncheon to make his pitch to the press. He admitted almost every cause he sets a hand to these days is lost.

The celery soup, mixed grill, and pumpkin pie came and went untouched while the eloquent, entertaining Morton pushed postal reform.

"The post office is unmanageable," he said. "It's run by 335 members of Congress who form the board of directors. They set rates and fix costs."

"Actually," the onetime Republican national chairman who is the brother of the present one said, "The members of Congress would love to give it up. But publicly they have to say they don't want to and I can understand that."

He was talking about the annual meeting and election postal unions, which are fighting the removal of the post office from tight congressional control in fear it will give them the course from a classical standpoint. Folk songs will be played by the class members as the various folk styles are learned.

less bargaining power. Congressmen are highly responsive to the unions, who represent some 750,000 employees. The government corporation was first proposed in 1967 by former Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien, a Democrat, and since endorsed and submitted to Congress by both President Lyndon B. Johnson and President Nixon.

Shrine Club Meets Nov. 20

Sheriff William B. Martin will discuss Ulster County's work release program for prisoners at the meeting.

Upcoming events scheduled by the Shrine Club include the annual meeting and election scheduled for Dec. 16 in the fighting the removal of the post office from tight congressional control in fear it will give them

Reapportionment Possible For '70 Legislature Session

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Congressional and legislative reapportionment during the 1970 session of the New York State legislature appeared a strong possibility today after a high level Republican decision.

Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges of Niagara Falls virtually ruled out a special session this year during a news conference in his office Tuesday. The senator doubted that it would be possible to draw district lines for the 41 congressional seats before the end of the year.

After the U.S. Supreme Court ruled April 7, 1969 that the 1968 state legislature violated the one man, one vote mandate in redistricting Congress, it was assumed that Governor Rockefeller and the legislative leaders would call the special session.

However, Brydges said a number of problems developed in considering downstate districts, including some on Long Island and part of New York City and Westchester.

Brydges said a district in northern Bronx would have to pick up about 76,000 persons in Westchester to make the districts equal. Westchester has long considered itself separate from New York City. The senator said the problems would have to be resolved before any start could be made on drawing upstate congressional districts.

The majority leader, who said Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea and Governor Rockefeller were abreast of developments, said the Court of Appeals may be asked to give the legislature an opportunity to redistrict the 150 member Assembly and the 57-member Senate. Some developments may take place later in the week.

The Court of Appeals redistricted the state legislature in 1966 when lawmakers were unable to agree on a plan of their own. At the time, the Assembly was Democratic. Now both houses are Republican controlled.

Brydges, who had conferred with several members of the Senate rules committee, said the Senate would meet Dec. 15 or 16 to organize so that the regular session, starting Jan. 7, could get off to a swift start.

He said committees, which have been functioning on a year-round basis for the first time, could handle legislation in advance of the session.

Brydges said some 4,000 Senate bills are "alive" from the 1969 session when two year bills were used for the first time. In addition, legislators pre-file bills starting Nov. 15.

Reapportionment during a regular session is a switch for Republicans. In the past, the major redistricting to special sessions.

The advantage of a special session is that the governor sets the agenda and only legislation in line with the agenda can be approved. Brydges said he may ask the governor to call a special session for reapportionment while the regular session is underway. This way, he said, reapportionment could be kept clear of entanglement with other legislative considerations.

Pentagon Warns GIs On Uniformed March

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon legal experts were debating whether action could be taken against servicemen who wear their uniforms in this week's "march against death" demonstration in the nation's capital will be arrested, turned over to their commanders and perhaps court-martialed.

This warning came as the Pentagon alerted several thousand troops outside the Washington area for possible capital duty should violence erupt at the war protest demonstration.

Army personnel who participate in these activities while in uniform will be in violation of Department of Defense and Department of the Army directives and regulations," the Army said.

Maximum punishment for "violating or failing to obey any general order or regulation" is two years at hard labor plus a dishonorable discharge.

Commanding officers could choose some form of less severe administrative-type discipline.

In a closely related matter, the present rate of production.

YOUNG PROTESTORS — An unidentified young girl struggles to carry a Viet Cong flag during an antiwar march by some 450 demonstrators in Boston. The uneventful march through the downtown area was organized by the November Action Committee, the group responsible for the confrontations at MIT. The issue at MIT was research being done for the Defense Department. The march ended near the Copley Square Draft Board, which had been vandalized earlier. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Speno to Pursue Nomination for U.S. Senator

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — State Sen. Edward J. Speno said Tuesday he would continue pursuing the Republican nomination for U.S. senator, despite newspaper criticism of his financial dealings.

The Nassau County lawmaker was the subject of a series of articles last month in the Long Island Newspaper "Newsday." Previously Speno had made several upstate speaking appearances as a declared opponent of U.S. Sen. Charles E. Goodell for next year's nomination.

"I'm still alive — very much alive," Speno said. But, he said, "I'd be less than frank if I didn't say I'd have to evaluate things a bit."

He said he was in Albany to attend a committee business before "getting away for awhile" to evaluate his political posture.

Man Has Played With Cards World Over for Years

For a thousand years, from Asia to the Middle East, from Europe to the United States, man has played with cards. He has used them for gaming, for conjuring and for divining. He has used them in religious rites and as religious symbols.

Befitting such a venerable institution, playing cards have crossed Asia in gypsy caravans, have been properly introduced to European society by returning Crusaders, have traveled to the New World with Columbus's sailors and have dangled from Ben Franklin's kite and have been shot at by Wild Bill Hickock.

Today in their millennium, they can be said to have "arrived." In the United States, card playing ranks as the number one participation sport, with games like bridge, poker (our only major homegrown contribution), hearts and gin rummy leading the pack.

No one knows exactly when or where playing cards had their start. In 1925 author T. F. Carter in "The Invention of Printing in China," cited a reference to the Chinese use of playing cards in 969 A.D.

Over those 1,000 years cards have undergone numerous face-lifts. These can be seen in a collection of antique playing cards owned by The United States Playing Card Company.

The collection, one of the most extensive in the world, is on permanent loan to the Cincinnati Art Museum.

Our modern pack developed from the 14th century Italian "Tarocchi" deck which had a trump suit of 22 "atouts" in addition to four 14-card suits. The atouts represented the 22 most important physical and spiritual forces affecting mankind for example, lightning, religion, temperance and death.

However, it is the four common suits which most interest historians. Each represented a social position in life in the middle Ages: the nobility symbol ized by swords; the clergy by cups; the tradesmen by oins; and the peasants by staves. These are today's spades, hearts, diamonds and clubs.

Over the years cards have changed from the earliest square, extremely oblong or (rarely) round shapes to the popular 3½x2½ poker and 3½x2¼ bridge sizes. In the old est packs, which were made by hand, a variety of materials were used. Oriental cards were made of thin painted sheets of wood, ivory, metal and even dried leaves. There were cards of canvas, leather, embroidered silk, tortoise shell and small tiles.

Until the invention of printing in 1440, playing cards were almost exclusively the property of the rich and noble-born, who commissioned leading artists, such as Botticelli, to prepare packs for them.

In those days kings and princes used their own pictures on face cards. Later, when printing made card playing available to the masses, national heroes and current events (such as wars) began to influence face cards.

Costumed in the fashion worn by Henry VII and Henry VIII, the old familiar faces remain to day. Among the representations are Julius Caesar as the king of diamonds, Alexander the Great as the king of clubs, the famous French captain Lancelot as the jack of clubs, Charlemagne as the king of hearts, the Biblical David as the king of spades and Judith of Bavaria, the beautiful wife of Charles VI, as the queen of hearts.

Over the centuries playing cards also have been used to teach everything from reading and arithmetic to history, music, military science, heraldry, logic and even Latin.

Birds Attack Man
FRANSCHOEK, South Africa (AP) — Frenzied birds attacked mountaineer Roy Allen as he crouched under a rock overhang high on a mountainside. Allen said he was about 300 feet from the summit of a mountain above his farm near here when the birds, similar to swallows, swooped down on him "like dive-bombers" for 15 minutes. "It was a terrifying experience. Fortunately I was sufficiently sheltered for them to veer within a foot of me, but it was rather uncomfortable while it lasted."

Women Voters League Slates Meet Tonight

SAUGERTIES Mrs. Richard Messina, president of Saugerties League of Women Voters, announced today that at the League's November meeting, as the first round of national program making, members will be asked to submit ideas for study on the national level for the next two years. The meeting is scheduled 8 o'clock tonight at Saugerties Methodist Church.

Also on the agenda are brief reports by Mrs. R. William Newman and members of her study group describing the status of the League's current Study and Evaluation of the Saugerties Central School System. Another item to be discussed will be final consensus on the League's Electoral College study. This part of the program will be presented by Mrs. Roy Ohno.

The Saugerties League cordially invites all local women to attend. Newcomers to Saugerties are especially invited to come and get acquainted with the League.

DAR Declares Support of Nixon

Saugerties Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, sponsored by the American opportunity to publicly reaffirm their belief and support of the American Revolution. The chapter would like to go on record as supporting President Nixon in his efforts to negotiate a just peace in Vietnam.

One of the objectives of the National Society DAR is "To cherish, maintain and extend the institutions of American Freedom, to foster true patriotism, and love of country, and to aid in securing for man kind all the blessings of liberty."

The Saugerties Chapter feels particularly at this time the utmost importance of this objective. The National Committee for Responsible Patriotism recently called on Governors, Mayors, and patriotic organizations, to proclaim November 10, 16, "Honor America Week."

The fact that Veterans Day falls on Tuesday Nov. 11, makes it eminently logical for patriotic Americans to assert their Americanism throughout this week.

Saugerties Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution asks the people of Saugerties to show the will of the majority by their support of the President in his efforts to win peace with honor to our great Nation, by flying the U.S. Flag conspicuously, wearing the national colors, red, white and blue, and by participating in patriotic ceremonies. The local chapter participated in the patriotic assemblage

American Indian Task Force Tells of Session With Agnew

WASHINGTON (UPI) — None originally to help write a book, on its four-hour meeting with that "stoic and noble child of 'Our Brother's Keeper'—The Agnew and presidential aide of that nature" gulf for the American Indian in White America. But first Indian Task Force. This is an more recently to tell Vice some of the task force offered angry group of men and President Spiro T. Agnew what opinions of the news media and women, and they don't care the Indian needs most is a the small notice they said was voice and a hand in his own given to the new book.

The task force is comprised of 42 Indians from 32 tribes in 15 states. They came together for a conference Tuesday to report of silence that hides the daily injustices to which our people are subjected," Janet McCloud, a Nisqually from Y. m. Wash., read from the task force's prepared statement.

"Because you, the press, have not chosen in your might to consider us important enough or sensational enough, there is no one to listen, and ultimately there is no redress for these grievances," Ernie Stevens, an Oneida now living in Sacramento, Calif., read in a low, choked voice. "It is you who have helped entrust us to a massive bureaucracy and left us there—the captive—America's prisoners of war."

Cipriano Manuel, a Papago from Tempe, Ariz., then reported on the Monday meeting with Agnew. Manuel said the task force was "treated cordially," listened to and given responses "that had a ring of sincerity."

Task force member Peter MacDonald, a Navajo from Fort Defiance, N.M., said, however, the group would not be deceived by cordiality.

"We heard almost identical promises in the early 1950s just before the government began a concerted effort to wipe out our reservations and to destroy us as a people and a culture," he said.

MacDonald said the task force would weigh the extent to which Agnew's response provides funds, "a direct channel to the White House," and involvement of Indians—including those who have never been listened to.

The task force asked Agnew and Garment to support a plan for a series of conferences and hearings with the goal of creating a permanent system in each of 11 areas of the country.

Reach Tentative Agreement On Dairy Industry Contract

NEW YORK (AP) — Tentative agreement on a new two-year contract between the dairy industry and deliverymen has averted a threatened metropolitan area milk strike at the cost of a 2 to 5 cents a quart retail price increase.

Agreement was reached Tuesday night between 150 distributing companies and Teamsters Union Locals 584, 602 and 607 for the pact giving weekly wage increases of from $27 to $35.

The agreement is subject to ratification by members of Local 584 today. Representatives of the other two locals were empowered to make a binding settlement.

Samuel J. Cohen, counsel for the unions, said in announcing the accord that it was retroactive to Oct. 24. Plant workers and others on straight salaries currently receive $136 a week; drivers average $180 a week.

A price increase is expected of 2 cents a quart in stores and up to 5 cents a quart for home delivered milk. Comparable increases are expected in the price of cream, butter, cheese and other milk products.

More than three million quarts of milk a day are delivered by the companies to nearly 10 million persons in the metropolitan area.

Dutchess Boss Of Democrats: Encouraging

POUGHKEEPSIE

Dutchess County Democratic Chairman Glenn C. Van Bramer has termed last week's election results "very encouraging for the Democratic Party in Dutchess County."

Van Bramer indicated that the figure of 29 Republicans and nine Democrats on the Board of Representatives is misleading as a show of strength, saying, "If a total of only 850 voters in election districts throughout the City of Poughkeepsie, Union Vale, Washington, Milan, Pine Plains, Stanford, America, North East, Beacon, Town of Poughkeepsie, Wappingers, Fishkill, La Grange, and Pleasant Valley had shifted their votes to our candidates, we would be in control of the board by 19 to 18. These 850 voters would have meant a switch of 10 seats."

He noted that Democrats had strong runs in Poughkeepsie and Beacon in mayoralty races and in suburban towns of Poughkeepsie, Hyde Park, Pleasant Valley and Wappingers in supervisory races, plus rural victories in America and Pine Plains.

All countywide posts, including five judges and the county clerk, were taken by the Republicans by substantial majorities, but Van Bramer feels these are not "Issue oriented" and people vote strictly on party affiliation.

NEW YORK philanthropic and charitable work. Tully, who died in multi-divisional operation with Henry J. Tully, founder of the work. Tully quoted from the April 1968 at the age of 76, an integrated program of nationwide textile sales citation issued at the time his organization bearing his name, late brother received an and father of Mrs. Thomas Wickman of 170 Albany Avenue, Kingston, was honored posthumously at a recent ceremony held at the company headquarters offices in the Empire State Building in Manhattan. A portrait of Mr. Tully, done by a Kingston studio, was unveiled before a gathering of family, friends and former business associates.

The portrait was a gift from the late Mr. Tully's three daughters; Mrs. Wickman, Mrs. John Monahan and Mrs. Richard Conroy. Accepting the portrait on behalf of the firm, president Richard Conroy, said that the painting would be hung in a prominent location at the firm until September, 1967 when a new corporate structure, Tully-Starrett Corporation was formed. He served in a similar capacity for the new firm until his death.

The project came about in an unusual way. Mrs. Wickman reports. While going through her late mother's effects, she found a photographic portrait of her father with handwritten instructions about having his picture made into a painting. Unfortunately, Mrs. Henry Tully died only a short while after her husband, before she was able to put this plan into action. The three Tully daughters teamed up to have their mother's wish become a reality. The surviving co-founder of the firm, Michael Tully, spoke briefly at the ceremony, describing Henry Tully's

Red Hook Fills Key Positions On the Recreation Directors

RED HOOK, N.Y. — Key posts on the Red Hook Recreation Park board of directors were filled here recently at the first meeting of the newly enlarged board, a member said today.

Ralph M. Douglas was re-elected president of the board. Donald C. Lancto was named vice-president and Cyrice E. Theberge was appointed treasurer. Eileen Kelleher was named secretary of the board.

Plans to "winterize" the park's swimming pool were discussed and will be carried out by the pool builder this week. "Unbuttoning" of the pool is slated for April, 1970.

Winter activities of the park including ice skating were planned and skating is expected to begin by mid-December, said a member.

The board also discussed safety hazards with pedestrians and vehicles on Linden Avenue when the swimming pool is open. The board agreed to present the problem to Dutchess County officials "in an attempt to improve the condition before next season," said a spokesman. The traffic danger is expected to increase next summer when two baseball fields are open to members.

What makes a man leave the people he knows, the home he made, even the language he speaks, to come here?

A better way to live. Where an ordinary man can do the things he thought were just for others.

Where a man can own his own home. Maybe with a back yard and a fence.

Where a man can give his children an education. A good one at that.

This is American living. And there are waiting lists, ten feet tall, of immigrant families waiting to come here.

Most of us know about the good things around here. Although sometimes we forget.

So what are we supposed to do?

Well, for one thing, we can invest in our country. Not everyone can boast that.

Invest in U.S. Savings Bonds. They help make America economically strong.

And there's nothing wrong with a little old American pride.

For another thing, Bonds help you.

They grow at a guaranteed rate, so you'll have a nice bundle for some rainy day.

What's more, Savings Bonds are easy to buy.

You can pick them up where you work in a Payroll Savings Plan. (Someone else does the paper work.)

Or you can buy Bonds where you bank.

When a family leaves behind an old familiar way of life to start a new one, there are some reasons.

Col. Vetort Ends 30-Year AF Career

SUMPTER, S. C.—U. S. Air Force Colonel Francis J. Vetort, a combat pilot who has flown 50 different types of USAF aircraft, closed the book on his 30-year military career in retirement ceremonies at Shaw AFB, S. C.

The veteran of World War II, Korea and Vietnam, wrote the final chapter of his career as commander of the Tactical Air Command's (TAC) Tactical Control Group, an assignment during which he earned the Legion of Merit.

Colonel Vetort and his wife, Doris, daughter of Emmitt Aldrich of 125 Harding Avenue, Kingston, will establish a home in Michigan where the colonel has a hunting estate and cattle operation.

Much of the colonel's Air Force career was spent in aerial pursuit of victory for the United States and its allies. During his first tour in the Pacific Theater of Operations in World War II, the colonel recorded two enemy kills, receiving the Silver Star for gallantry during a mission in which he downed a Japanese aircraft over New Guinea.

Although most of Colonel Vetort's World War II experience was flying air support for ground troops, he closed his wartime tour flying fighter escort to the bomber that dropped the world's first atomic bomb on Hiroshima to end the war in the Pacific.

During the Korean War, the colonel downed two MIG-15s during his 100-mission tour with the 4th Tactical Fighter Wing to which he was assigned as director of operations. Later in the war he assumed command of the 474th Fighter Bomber Group flying F-84 Thunderjets in support of allied ground troops.

In 1965, the colonel, a qualified senior parachutist, jumped—literally—into the midst of the Dominican Crisis with the Army's 18th Airborne Corps. At the time, he was director of TAC's Ninth Air Force Direct Air Support Center.

The colonel was assigned as director of operations for the 15th Tactical Fighter Wing, MacDill AFB, Fla., before his assignment to Shaw.

He graduated from Stephenson (Mich.) High School and received a BS degree in industrial education in 1940 from Northern Michigan University. He was commissioned through the aviation cadet program in 1942.

Colonel Vetort, a sports enthusiast, has been involved with both big and small game hunting in all parts of the world and possesses numerous trophies. He also is an avid fisherman and plans to pursue his sports interests.

Colonel and Mrs. Vetort have four children, Joe, Mark, Mike and Susan.

Paltz Man Commands 156th Battery

KINGSTON York Army National Guard, Winkler of Pomona, N. J., Kingston, Poughkeepsie and were recently inspected by the Lt. Col. Joseph C. Callahan, Division Artillery training officer, 50th Armored Division Artillery, Newburgh, New York.

BATTALION INSPECTION — A report on 1st Battalion, 156th Artillery's training highlights for the coming year are discussed at a recent inspection of the local National Guard unit at Kingston. Checking the report are (L-R) Col. Frederick C. Winkler, commanding officer, 50th Armored Division Artillery; Lt. Col. Frank B. Aceto, commander of 1st Battalion and Lt. Col. Joseph B. Callahan, S3, 50th Armored Division (156th Artillery photo).

(S3) of Trenton, N. J. The inspection covered Saturday and Sunday's all-day assemblies. The inspection of the guard units included a visit to each armory installation, training of the personnel both at the armories and in a field communications problem conducted in the vicinity of Highland, and prior planning for the annual field training tour at Camp Drum. The annual encampment is scheduled for May 16-30, 1970. A staff briefing session was held at the Kingston Armory during the two-day tour of inspection. Lt. Col. Frank B. Aceto, Newburgh, commander of the battalion, expressed his pleasure for the inspection visit as a means of "better acquainting the staff members of both the battalion and the division artillery and as an excellent opportunity to iron out many of the training problems which face the unit prior to taking to the field."

In another highlight of local National Guard activities Capt. Guy M. Gardner, New Paltz, took over the command of Headquarters Battery, 1st Battalion, 156th Artillery, succeeding Capt. James H. Fiore, Kingston, who has been reassigned to the position of intelligence officer (S2) of the battalion. The announcement came from Lt. Col. Aceto, battalion commander.

Capt. Gardner returned from service in Vietnam last spring. He voluntarily entered on active duty from the 156th Artillery in 1967. He had been a member of the local Guard unit both as an enlisted man and officer from 1948.

He was presented the Bronze Star for "exceptionally meritorious service in connection with military operations against a hostile force during the period February 1968 through February 1969."

The presentation ceremonies were held last March at the Armory, on North Manor Avenue. Capt. Gardner served in Vietnam as a commander of the 8th Area Advisor Platoon and the 11th AA Platoon of the Second Civil Affairs Company and was active in the civil affairs survey of Dinh Tuy Province where he gathered critical information under very hazardous conditions.

He also was commended for his service during the bubonic plague outbreak in the Vung Tau special area in 1968.

He is employed by Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. in the Kingston area.

Times Change

(That's for Sure)

Young people starting out today face vastly more complex and rapidly changing economic conditions than their parents and grandparents. They hear so much about credit cards, revolving charge plans, tight money, cradle-to-grave security, a cash-less society. They have every right to question the old copybook maxims like, "a penny saved is a penny earned," and "save for a rainy day."

It takes information, and it takes planning to avoid the many pitfalls that block the way to self-fulfillment, family happiness, and achievement. The big question is, "Will I manage my money, or will I let money manage me?"

Experimental School Offers Promise

EDISON, N.J. (AP) — At 17, April Werner was tired of English, mathematics and French. Effortlessly, she had compiled close to an A average at Morris-town High School.

At 19, Amos James was making another try at coping with algebra at J. P. Stevens High School in North Edison. His high school record was mostly C's and D's.

Morristown and Edison are only 30 miles apart, but April and Amos are from different worlds.

April lives in an upper middle-class community that loops around the inner city of Morristown. Getting to her house involves a drive down a smooth country road and past sculptured lawns and ponds and willow trees. April has lived for 10 years in a grey shingled house which has no number on its mailbox.

Amos' family has lived in an apartment complex in North Edison for 10 years. Originally, the James family came from Virginia. In the afternoon, on the corner of Amos' apartment a lively game of craps is often under way.

Across the street, Negroes live in tar-paper houses, some without heat. The people of Poters have been waiting for 13 years for an urban renewal project to move off the drawing board. Amos calls Edison "A honky town in the south," but says in the next breath that he may some day teach history at J. P. Stevens.

Both Amos and April are in the first class of students at Livingston College, the newest and most experimental college at Rutgers University, New Jersey's state university.

Along with 700 students ("we didn't expect so many to say yes," said Dean Ernest A. Lynton), Amos and April moved onto a campus still under construction near the banks of the Raritan River.

Around them are empty and dilapidated barracks that were once home to thousands of GIs at Camp Kilmer, an embarkation base in World War II.

Amos and April chose Livingston because of the promise offered.

Livingston, the catalogue says, will have "no ivory towers." It cannot because "our cities are decaying, many of our fellow men are starving, social injustice and racism litter the earth; weapons of awesome destruction threaten our existence." The politics of confrontation; the writing of Che (Guevara) and Malcolm (X), computers and information explosion; racial polarization in the cities; the moral and medical questions of prolonging life—these phenomena must be faced and examined for they represent fundamental forces at work in our world."

Amos is the first of 13 children to attend college. His brother Henry was killed in action in Vietnam last October. His father died when he was 3. "My mother has been on welfare off and on," Amos said.

Last April Amos was one of the leaders in a two-day boycott by 200 black students and parents at J. P. Stevens. Changes in student policy occurred. And the students reversed a Board of Education decision. The birthday of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. would be declared a holiday.

April is the second child in a family of four to attend Rutgers. Her brother, a physicist, was graduated from Rutgers in 1966. April's father is a psychiatric social worker, her mother a kindergarten teacher.

Last year April, like Amos, tried to bring about changes at her high school—changes in curriculum, student schedules, independent study courses. She found the students' reaction disappointing and frustrating.

"Every single thing the administration did for the students they threw back in their face. I guess the kids weren't ready for change."

So April and Amos applied to a school that wants to "bring the community to the campus," believes in giving students the freedom to choose their own life-styles, and is committed "to admitting disadvantaged students."

April, who says she may major in anthropology but is interested in "everything," applied to college in her junior year and was accepted at Barnard College. She chose Livingston "because I had a feeling about Barnard—they have so many rules. They tell you they want change but..."

Amos who plans to major in history and may go to law school, chose Livingston (where he's on scholarship) over Hampton Institute (a predominantly Negro school in Hampton, Va.).

"Livingston's a new school and I could help mold some of the things there," Amos said. "I want to work out the problems of the city."

Amos was one of 115 "high risk" students accepted to Livingston. These students attended a special summer session at the college.

Freedom and Individuality are the keynotes of Livingston. The college's grading system, unlike that of Rutgers' other branches, is honors, credit and no credit.

A Change of Pace for White House Reporter

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—Is the southern tip of California any odd place to be writing about Washington, and particularly the White House? Not at all. This reporter is in San Diego for the 60th anniversary national convention of Sigma Delta Chi, an organization and a meeting that brings together college and professional journalists.

Going to a convention and all of its shop talk is one thing, but more important for a White House reporter is getting away from 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue and the nation's capital.

Prolonged or over-exposure to Washington can result in what former President Harry Truman once isolated and identified as "Potomac fever," a cerebral condition which produces visions of over-importance in the victim.

Other social scientists have identified the ailment simply as the "Washington syndrome," symptoms of which include delusions that all wisdom is centered in the District of Columbia.

Victims are known to refer to "out there" as anywhere beyond direct sight of the White House, Pentagon, State Department, Capitol Hill or certain suburban enclaves of wisdom and culture such as George town, Spring Valley, Cleveland Park and, more recently, the in-town Watergate Apartments.

Travelling with a President, as some reporters do, is no real escape from Washington for these travellers tend to spend most of their time, be it in Djakarta or Des Moines, with precisely the same people they see every day in Washington.

Moving about the country independently is another matter. One has to travel only a relatively short distance from Washington, read other newspapers and hear local broadcasts to realize how much tunnel vision there is among the constant residents of D.C.

Association with people two thousand or more miles away from the national capital produces a certain awe of "out there." Many Americans may be preoccupied with what Washington does to their lives but they do talk and think about other things. Their regard for and memory of stunning achievements or goofs by national leaders is not as great or as long remembered as those of Washington prefer to believe.

Rosendale Cottage Is Losing Ground

By SHANE CROSBY
ROSENDALE

In what looks like a preview for a California mudslide, Rondout Creek Flood Control Proj-

GOING, GOING . . . — No, this is not a California hillside home about to become part of a mudslide. It is a Rosendale village cottage on the verge of entering the Rondout Creek near the James Street Bridge. Flood control engineers have "no comment" on the plight of homeowner Stephen Huben and he himself has little more to say than "I've turned it over to my attorney." (Freeman photo by Haines).

ect engineers are a little red-faced these days as they watch a cottage near the James Street Bridge slowly move into their waterway. Since its last occupants moved out around Labor Day, the cottage—owned by Stephen Huben—has been losing ground and aiming toward the creek. Gone are tons of earth, a huge tree and parts of a fence and seemingly not far behind is the cottage, now bent out of shape with saggy roof and a warped porch. Both Sides Reluctant Homeowner Huben, living in the main house on the property begun to part and the reason seems to be contained in a soil survey map regarding the Huben land that edges on the project's right of way. An underground source of water apparently went undetected by soil engineers who examined the property and placed their "OK" on the takeover by the right of way. "They put a lot of lines, left and right, and here and there on a piece of paper they called a map and gave it to the construction men," said Huben. "They said the condition 'wasn't supposed to be there.' We knew it (the underground water) has been running for years," he commented.

Special

A sloping 'ank is the general rule along the renovated creek with the bank going out one foot for every foot it goes down. The case at the Huben property is one where the bank's edge is almost straight up and down. A cement dike and steel beams are visual attempts seen being tried by the contractor to keep what is left of the property from floating away.

Huben said that the underground water has softened the bank to the point where pilings are not holding even if forced 40 to 50 feet into the creek's edge.

Cable Attached to Cottage The homeowner, who says "I don't have a problem in the world," added that a steel cable has been attached to the cottage to keep it from slipping any further, but the soil under the building seems to be slipping away under and all around the seemingly doomed structure.

Unshaken by all this, and in a calm voice the owner is quietly sitting back and waiting for the outcome, while engineers and workers struggle to save what is left of the property. "I don't have a problem in the world," he said. "When they get through with my place it will be a palace." His closing comment, when asked about the situation, was "I don't need publicity, I got an attorney."

And Happy Holiday to You . . .

Pesticide in Some Gobblers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of turkeys found to contain heptachlor residue may have picked up the powerful pesticide from land treated for control of chiggers, according to Agriculture Department sources. Chiggers, the same small mites which can cause humans to itch after working on lawns, are troublesome to turkey growers who want a nice, smooth bird to sell. The department announced last Friday that 150,000 live turkeys and some four million pounds of turkey meat were held off the Thanksgiving market after heptachlor residue was found in some birds on Oct. 9 at a Minnesota processing plant.

it was possible they could have picked up the heptachlor from rangeland used to graze the birds. Officials say all contaminated birds were traced to farms supplying Arkansas Valley Industries, Inc., headquartered in Little Rock. The department said the investigation would continue to determine how widespread the distribution has been. Officials said none of the contaminated birds had reached the retail market. Dr. Gilbert H. Wise, head of consumer protection for the Consumer and Marketing Service, said Monday he did not know for certain how the pesticide came to be in the turkeys. He speculated, however, that Wise would not comment on the possibility that heptachlor had been used for control of chiggers. He acknowledged, however, that the small mites were a serious problem for poultrymen. Food and Drug Administration regulations do not permit any traces of heptachlor in meat and poultry, although some pesticides have "tolerance" levels which permit some residues in the products. The Public Health Service said poisoning in humans can result in convulsions and quick death if dosage is high, or loss of appetite, vomiting, headaches, nausea, dizziness and brain damage if exposure is less.

Marine Leaves $2,500 Insurance For School Grant

STUART, Fla. (AP) — A young Marine killed in Vietnam has left $2,500 of his GI insurance to his high school for two scholarships and a plaque dedicated to the school's war dead. The plaque will bear the famous last words of Nathan Hale: "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country." The Marine, Charles Tyson, 18, also bequeathed to the school the American flag removed from his coffin just before his body was lowered into a grave in Fernwood Cemetery. The bequests were made in a will the young Marine drafted after telling his father in a last letter home that he had a premonition of death.

His father, Leonard Tyson, fought back tears as he told pupils of Martin County High School about the will at a special assembly Monday.

Popular Park

ESTES PARK, Colo. (AP) — Rocky Mountain National Park in Colorado has 410 square miles of territory, most of it up and down. Almost 2.2 million persons visited the park in 1968.

"He was proud of the Marines and loved his school," his father said. "He believed that whatever his country did was right."

Young Tyson left two $1,000 scholarships to be awarded to a boy and girl in the 1970 graduating class. He also left $500 for the plaque, to be designed by the school's art department, bearing Hale's words.

Apollo 12 Crew: A Final Countdown For 2nd Moon Landing

THE LANDING SITE: Eastern Edge of Ocean of Storms

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—simply because the craters are the Houston space center, surface so we'll have low hills."—streaks of debris that extend gouged out by meteoroid crater copernicus more than will pick up some of this ray material because, if it can be identified as such, it might show the composition of rocks from the unexplored lunar highlands.

The robot craft Surveyor 3 landed there on April 20, 1967 and beamed back pictures that showed the area was appropriate for man's descent.

The site is 954 miles west of Apollo 11's Tranquility Base, and the relatively flat topography is generally the same. Both sites are on vast seas that blanket much of the moon's earth-facing hemisphere.

To astronauts Charles H. Conrad Jr. and Alan L. Bean, however, the terrain will appear slightly rougher, with more of a rolling appearance because of larger and more rounded craters.

"The horizon will be rougher than it was at Tranquility Base

'Non-Free Return Trajectory' Around Moon

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—The Apollo 12 moon pilots must take the risk of getting stranded in space much earlier in their mission than the men of any past lunar flight. For Apollo 12, "biting the bullet" comes just 30 hours, 53 minutes after the blastoff from Cape Kennedy.

During earlier flights to the moon, astronauts followed a path that would bring them looping around the moon and back to earth with only minor course adjustments if their spacecraft rocket engine failed to fire.

Only after they dropped into lunar orbit with a blast of their main command ship engine were they dependent on rocket power to get back home. Engineers said if the rocket worked once putting them into moon orbit, it probably would work again to get them out.

Same Type

Apollo 12's Saturn 5 launch rocket will aim it out toward the moon on the same type "free return trajectory" used in the past.

But about halfway between earth and moon, the astronauts will fire their command ship engine to leave this course and get on another one called a "non-free return trajectory." From that moment on they can no longer coast around the moon and back to earth.

Unless they fire their big rocket engine again, or use other rockets on the Apollo, they will loop around the moon and speed back between the moon and the earth—missing the earth by 56,600 miles.

Apollo 12 Flight Director Gerald D. Griffin said the risks of switching to the nonfree return path are the same as the risks of going into lunar orbit. In both cases, he said, the spacecraft engine must work to get the astronauts home.

Bite The Bullet

"You're just biting the bullet a little sooner," Griffin said.

And if the main engine breaks down after the maneuver, he said, the astronauts still have a pair of alternate ways to get back on a free return course.

—Until they are about two-thirds of the way to the moon, the astronauts can use their small control rockets to get back on this course.

—Or they can wait until two hours after they loop around the moon and fire a blast of the descent engine in their lunar landing craft, which would still be hooked to the Apollo command ship nose, to get back on the earth-bound path.

The reasons behind the new trajectory are complex, based on the relative positions of the earth and sun and moon at this time of year.

Mission analysis expert Eugene Ricks said this was the only way Apollo 12 could get to its target, the lunar Ocean of Storms on the left side of the moon's face, with the proper lighting on the landing site and still meet the necessary launch tracking requirements.

On the maps, the landing site is located at 2 degrees 24 minutes south of the lunar equator and 23 degrees 18 minutes west of the north-south center line on the moon's near face.

If the launch of Conrad, Bean and Richard F. Gordon is delayed from Nov. 14 to Nov. 16, their target on the moon will be more than 350 miles to the west—in the middle of the Ocean of Storms.

The Al Fatah Peace Blocker

(UPI Foreign News)

When the June, 1967 Arab-Israeli war came to an end, Al Fatah was only one of more than a dozen Arab commando groups claiming to operate inside Israel.

Today it is able to impose its will on governments, as it did most recently against Lebanon, and stands as the greatest single obstacle to a negotiated peace settlement in the Middle East.

It draws logistic support from the Baathist regime in Syria, money from such wealthy Arab nations as Saudi Arabia and its recruits and cover from two million Palestinian Arabs, including more than one million living in Israeli-occupied territory.

And when it forced Lebanon to recognize its presence on Lebanese soil it made Israel vulnerable to attack from three sides.

In Damascus, Al Fatah leader Yasser Arafat, a 40-year-old civil engineering graduate, rates an honor guard. He can keep President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic waiting.

Al Fatah's ultimate goals are suspected of reaching beyond its announced objective, destruction of Israel and establishment of a Palestinian state.

According to this belief, Al Fatah would not mourn if the moderate regimes of Jordan and Lebanon also fell.

Al Fatah owes its eminence among Arab commando organizations to Arafat's energy and to the deterioration of the prestige of Nasser, twice defeated and aging.

In the mid-1950's, the Fatah tried to organize Palestinians working and studying in Germany but was blocked by the Nasserites. It was not until 1965 that revolutionary Algeria offered them a training ground.

Israel unwittingly gave them new prestige in March of 1968 with a raid on Karameh, a large refugee center across the Jordan River from the occupied West Bank. The Fatah, Arab word for "those who sacrifice themselves," stood their ground.

It led to recognition from the previously luke-warm Nasser.

Tunisia Not At the Arab Meet in Cairo

(UPI Foreign News)

As foreign and defense ministers of 13 Arab states met in Cairo to castigate the United States, one Arab nation was notable for its absence—Tunisia.

Tunisia under the leadership of its pro-Western president, Habib Bourguiba, has been the odd-man-out in Arab councils since April 21, 1965, when Bourguiba dared to suggest to Arab leaders that direct negotiations should be carried on between Israel and Palestine Arabs, and that dreams of a military victory over Israel were a dangerous illusion.

For his pains, he promptly was labeled an "Arab Judas." He does not like President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic and has lost few opportunities since to criticize Nasser's apparently compulsive urge to inflict more blood-letting upon the Middle East.

In August of 1967, after the Arab-Israeli June war, he called upon Arab states to "reconsider the policy" they have stubbornly pursued for the past 20 years.

Indirectly, he blamed Nasser for that war, saying that in attempting to ban Israel from the Gulf of Aqaba, the Egyptian leader acted without calculating the risks involved and in spite of international agreements and the existing state of facts.

In October, 1967, and January, 1968, he suggested that Nasser resign, declaring that "in order to have a change in Arab policy, there must be a change in mentality and men."

Bourguiba's friendship for the West and his independent stand against Nasser has paid handsome dividends.

Tunisia has received around $500 million in aid from the United States, some $50 million from West Germany and she has negotiated partial association with the European Common Market.

Today, Bourguiba is ailing and soon it is expected he must name a successor. Meanwhile, among Arabs, his remains a voice in the wilderness.

As for Nasser's call for a campaign of "blood and fire" against Israel, it is the cry of a desperate man who already has surrendered his leadership to the militant Palestine commandos.

Heart Health

By

Mid-Hudson Heart Assoc., Inc.

Atherosclerosis, a slowly developing disease of the coronary arteries, is responsible for most heart attacks and for the chest pain called angina pectoris. This disease is caused by fatty deposits that harden into patches along the inner lining of the artery and thus narrow it. When an artery channel becomes narrowed by atherosclerosis, a blood clot may form in the narrowed artery, blocking the channel and cutting off the flow of blood to the part of the heart supplied by that artery. The result is a heart attack.

Although the symptoms may vary, they are usually a severe painful sensation of pressure in front of the chest, sometimes spreading to the left arm, sweating, sudden intense shortness of breath and loss of consciousness.

Should someone have a heart attack the doctor should be called at once and efforts should then be made to help the patient take a position comfortable for him. Tight clothing should be loosened, and the patient should not be given anything to drink without a doctor's advice. The pamphlet "Heart Attack" is free for the asking at the Mid-Hudson Heart Association, 72 Main Street, Kingston.

Different Tastes

MONTREAL (CP) — In two major thefts in one night here recently, thieves went from one extreme to the other, taking 20 tons of steel and a ton of salami. Police reported that the steel, valued at $14,000, was stolen while it was loaded on an express company truck. The $3,250 worth of salami was taken by burglars who broke into the premises of a city meat company.

Be A Stylish Stout

LIMA (UPI)—Women all over the world have weight problems, but those of Latin America are plagued more than most with the tendency to be plump.

A young Lima matron, Elena Bustamante de Sanchez, has found a way to meet the problem and even make some money from it.

With the slogan, "Be a stylish stout," she has opened a boutique for size 16s and larger, and specializes in "space styles" for spacious figures.

Mrs. Sanchez even has changed the classic ideal of a high fashion mannequin—her models have more flesh than bones.

Overweight herself, and unable to lose weight, Mrs. Sanchez is a frustrated law student who became a designer through a set of special circumstances.

"I've always had this problem," she said, referring to her plump figure. "When I was 10 years old I was a fat little girl and I grew up to be a fat woman."

Mrs. Sanchez is about five feet three inches tall and weighs 165 pounds, although she admits frankly that at one time she was up to 200.

She said she went through the usual program of unsuccessful crash diets and self-deceptive plans to lose weight—later.

Mrs. Sanchez said she began to see things differently when she traveled outside her country.

When she returned to Peru, she noticed how many of the local women had measurements even more ample than her own. She decided to give them the opportunity to wear chic clothes, too.

"But a woman's shape should not be a problem," she emphasized. "We should take advantage of the latest styles."

The models Mrs. Sanchez employs in her boutique are plump like herself. They are housewives, students and office workers but they have in common the fact that they have never modeled before.

"The whole problem is one of attitude," Mrs. Sanchez maintained. "Any woman, no matter how fat she is, can look as lovely as a slender teen-ager once she gets rid of her inhibitions."

Fiery Fixture

Need Better Mileage
TAUNTON, England (CP)—Car and motorcycle police patrolmen in Somerset have been told to stretch their legs more. The gasoline bill for the 300 vehicles in the county rocketed to 30,000 British pounds last year. "Policemen do not catch crooks running around in cars all day," said a high-ranking officer.

Gambler's Wife Faces Hellish Life

By CHARLOTTE SLATER

She took me in her parlor; She cooled me with her fan. She whispered in her mother's ear.

"I love that gambler man. —'Roving Gambler'—"

Sound romantic? Take it from women married to gamblers — it isn't.

Marie is 25, has been married eight years and has three children, the youngest 3.

"I didn't notice anything was wrong until we had been married three years," she says. "He wasn't coming home nights and at first I assumed it was another woman. But then all our money started running out. Bills weren't paid and there wasn't any food money in the house."

"We got way behind in gas and electric bills. Many times the kids were the only ones who would eat. Or we would just 'happen' to drop in at a neighbor's house at dinner time, hoping we'd be invited to stay."

"The children suffered most because they really didn't have a father. He would go to work, come home late and then sleep. He was always grouchy because he felt guilty."

"After I found out about the gambling mostly cards, I screamed constantly that I would leave him. The children knew there would be a big fight every time my husband came home. When they saw him come in the door, the two older ones would run to a corner and hold onto each other in sheer fright."

"We took out countless loans. And when we couldn't pay those off, we'd take out a consolidation loan to pay off the other loans. We're still paying and will be for years."

"Finally one night he came home again without any money, and I told him that was it. The next day while he was at work I moved myself and the children out of the house. I really didn't want to but I felt I had to do something."

"I stayed away and didn't notify him where he were for five days. We finally talked one night and I told him that only way we would get back together was for him to join Gamblers Anonymous."

Gamblers Anonymous, founded a little over 12 years ago in Los Angeles, today numbers about 2,500 members in approximately 110 chapters throughout the continental United States. There are also chapters in Canada, England and Australia. More than 75 per cent of the Gamblers Anonymous chapters are associated with an active Gam-Anon group, the sister organization which offers help to relatives of compulsive gamblers, regardless of whether the gambler himself belongs to Gamblers Anonymous.

Gam-Anon women ask new members 10 questions. If eight answers are "yes," the analysis is a compulsive gambler husband—an emotionally sick man:

1. Does he stay away from home without letting you know where he is?
2. Does he borrow money?
3. Does he want you to borrow money for him?
4. Does he lose time from work due to gambling?
5. Does he lie?
6. Does he belittle you?
7. Does he neglect his children?
8. Does he fail to pay household expenses?
9. Does he have unwarranted outbursts of anger?
10. Do you get threatening telephone calls?

Patterned after the older Alcoholics Anonymous, G.A. and Gam-Anon don't claim to have formulas for instant happiness. What they do have is a sympathetic, group — therapy atmosphere where members can discuss their problems openly and find out how others have solved the same problems.

As one Gam-Anon woman describes her organization, it teaches a member either how to live with a compulsive gambler or how to live without him.

A primary tenet of Gam-Anon is this: The wife of a compulsive gambler cannot begin to help herself or her husband until she admits to herself she is powerless — absolutely powerless — over her husband's gambling urges.

Gam-Anon meetings are slanted heavily toward the spiritual-achieving serenity, peace of mind, control over emotions. But the hardnosed, practical aspect is there too.

Members help each other figure ways to do such basic things as keeping meals on the table for themselves and the children.

1. Don't be both mother and wife to a compulsive gambler.
2. Make him assume responsibility for what he's done.
3. Don't unwittingly tempt or encourage a gambler to continue.
4. The 17 women sat around a cafeteria table in the kitchen of a downtown church, wedged between the cabinets on one side and sinks on the other.

They had come for a weekly meeting of Gam-Anon, and organization for relatives of compulsive gamblers. They had come both to find comfort and to give it.

This night was special. There was a new girl — a child faced girl with ash blond hair, enormous gray-blue eyes and a maternity dress that fell in folds around six months of pregnancy.

The meeting was called to order by the member chosen as leader for the night. There was a moment of silent meditation and a brief recitation of Gam-Anon goals and philosophy.

The newcomer was formally welcomed to the group. She said nothing. Her only response was a small, non-committal smile.

Each woman made a statement. Some told experiences; others gave bits of advice.

But whatever the statement, it always started with the one sentence by which every Gam-Anon member identifies herself:

"My name is —, AND I am the wife of a compulsive gambler."

Story after story was told — stories of frustration, separation, attempted suicide, threats against children and psychiatric counseling.

Little Mrs. New Face said nothing. What did these women know of her situation? She had her pride, too, didn't she?

But slowly, as some of the stories began hitting close to home — her eyes fluttered or lowered quickly — especially at the stories of other young mothers in the group.

The child within her would be her third to be born into the hellish world of compulsive gambling.

There were tried and true tips for the new girl:

"Try not to scream at your husband anymore. You only hurt yourself."

No response.

"Take this copy of our serenity prayer. It will help."

No response.

Mrs. New Face raised her head and looked at the speaker.

The next woman in line, without looking directly at the newcomer said: "I know other girls whose husbands are compulsive gamblers and, for me, it's like looking in a mirror. But they won't go to Gam-Anon. They don't want to give it a chance."

"It's humiliating to them to cry on somebody else's shoulder and tell what a rotten marriage they have. They just don't realize gambling can be like alcoholism."

Mrs. New Face lowered her head again and stared at the folded hands in her lap.

The discussion leader said, "You are not responsible for making your husband gambler. All your love and concern and anguish cannot make him stop. Gambling is a sickness, and he must treat it himself."

Everyone was finished. Mrs. New Face still had not said a word all evening. There was a moment of silence. Would she become part of Gam-Anon?

Finally, in a tired voice that trembled only slightly, she said:

"My name is Amy, and I am the wife of a compulsive gambler."

Helpful Hints

What's happening in your room? If the answer is nothing, try a "Sound-In." Create special, acoustically geared areas in your bedroom for music listening. For example, set up a practice room that's a bright, sound-absorbing studio. Cover the walls with a rush matting and the floor with sunny, shaggy carpeting. Laminated window shades in bright stripes beam while controlling the sunshine volume.

Now these are acrylic paints in 18 standard colors to make home painting easier. The water-based paints dry tack-free in 20 minutes, can be handled in an hour. Most surfaces don't need a primer. Apply acrylics directly to bare wood, styrofoam, styrene, plastics, paper, fabric, pottery, plaster, pressboard, canvas, newspaper. Only smooth surfaces, such as glass or metal, need a primer.

Meat Prices Still On the Increase

There is no indication of lower meat prices in the near future, according to the Market Information Service of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets. The cost of getting meat ready for the consumer continues to increase gradually, and it's only the fact that producers are keeping up with or slightly ahead of the demand that keeps prices at their current reasonable level.

Beef, for all practical purposes, can be called steady at whole sale. Some cuts advanced and others were lower. However, no change will be reflected at the retail level. There will be a wide variety of special prices equivalent to last week. Chuck steak will be featured in the 49 cent to 59 cent range, chuck roast in the same range, semi-boneless around 69 cents and boneless around 89 cents. Rib steak will special from 95 cents to 99 cents, sirloin stead 97 cents to $1.07, porterhouse and T-bone in the $1.07 to $1.39 range. Boneless cross rib roast will be featured in some stores at 99 cents, round bone shoulder roast 79 cents to 89 cents, depending on trim. Rib roast will special at 89 cents for second cut and 95 cents for the first cut. A few stores will feature short ribs at 49 cents, plate beef at 29 cents and beef liver at 49 cents.

As in beef, some pork cuts are up and others down a little at wholesale, but neither change was sufficient to change retail prices. Upstate stores will special loin roast rib half 69 cents, loin half 79 cents, cooked ham shank half 59 cents, butt half or whole 69 cents, semi-boneless shank half 65 cents and butt half 75 cents. Fresh ham shank half will be 59 cents, butt half or whole 69 cents. There will be a few special on smoked picnic shoulders at 49 cents and boneless pork shoulder roast at 79 cents. A few stores will feature slab bacon at 69 cents, sliced will special 79 cents to 89 cents, regular prices 10 cents to 15 cents higher. There will also be a few features on center cut ham slices at 99 cents, pork hockies 59 cents and neck bones 33 cents.

Veal and lamb continue expensive. Poultry will be an excellent buy with some stores having sales on fryers and broilers whole 29 cents, cut-up 33 cents to 35 cents. Turkey prices continue to rise. Supplies both in storage and fresh are not as plentiful as last year.

Today's Favorite Word Is...Peace

By GAY PAULEY
MOSCOW (UPI) — The word is peace. You hear it at every gathering with Soviet women.

Our group of women on a three-week tour of East Europe to meet informally with our counterparts raised our glasses with them to toast peace repeatedly.

We heard how women of the world must work together for that goal, that we drink to peace for our children and our families, of how women especially are a powerful force toward ending all war.

Peace through understanding of different peoples of the world was repeatedly mentioned. Valentina Nikolayeva-Tereshkova, the only woman ever in space, spoke of this understanding, too.

Miss Tereshkova, a petite and pretty brunette, the wife of a cosmonaut, and the mother of a five-year-old girl, is chairman of the Soviet Women's Committee, a powerful organization of women, organized initially in 1941 to fight Hitler's Fascist regime. Now it has branches throughout the USSR.

The U.S. Information Agency calls the Soviet Women's Committee a powerful part of the Communist party, the "arm to reach other countries, especially the developing nations," as a USA spokesman put it, "to reach them as family, children and peace representatives."

However, the committee mentions no party affiliation in a brochure on its history. It does spell out the goals of the women thusly — "To actively participate in the women's international democratic movement to ensure peace, national sovereignty, and to promote friendly ties between the women of the Soviet Union and other countries.

"Special attention is attached to efforts to safeguard and consolidate peace."

Miss Tereshkova spoke to us of the hopes of peace and understanding as she welcomed the 30 U.S. women from government, business, the professions and the arts.

The toasts were convivial, the atmosphere friendly and without tension all along the route of our group — Moscow, Leningrad, Samarkand — until the night in Tashkent when the U.S. women were guests at Friendship House in that modern capital of the Uzbek Republic in Central Asia.

Then pow — the U.S. involvement in Vietnam hit us squarely between the eyes.

A Tashkent Women's Committee spokesman, Skukova Samatovna, began by telling us how the subversive role of women under Moslem custom had all been changed since Lenin. Now there were equal rights for women, and she sketched the powerful role today's Uzbek woman plays in politics.

Then she mentioned her own visit to the United States to visit with the women strike for peace leaders and how she found "your women do not support the U.S. role in Vietnam. Of course, we the USSR do support the Vietnamese she did not use the word North Vietnamese.

"We would like for you to help stop the war in Vietnam," she said, "so the people can go to work rebuilding their country, to chose the government they wish."

The change of mood was so unexpected, the U.S. group was stunned. No more toasts to peace were offered that evening. The dinner ended in a hurry.

Women Well Paid on Government Hill

WASHINGTON (AP) — There may be more women on Capitol Hill being paid $25,000 a year and more than in any other small area in the country. Senate and House records reveal there are about 80 such well-paid women. These include one senator and nine representatives, who get $42,500 apiece.

Among top paid women employees — each with a salary of $33,495 — are two Negroes.

They are Christine Ray Davis, staff director of the House Government Operations Committee, headed by Rep. William Dawson, D-Ill., and Louise Dargans, research director of the House Education and Labor Committee and former administrative assistant to Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y. Dawson and Powell are both Negroes.

Another at that top level is Bess M. Dick, longtime chief clerk of the House Judiciary Committee.

Of the 435 House members, 112 have women as their top aides. Of these, 53 are paid $25,795, the top permissible salary for a Congressional aide.

Of the 10 women members of Congress, only three have women as their top aides here. They are Reps. Martha Griffiths, D-Mich., Leonor K.

Sullivan, D-Mo., and Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y.

One of those making more than $25,000 is Evelyn Lincoln, the late President John F. Kennedy's personal secretary. She is legislative assistant to Rep. James W. Kee, D-W. Va.

Six senators have women as their top and highest paid aides. They are Sens. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., majority leader; Robert Byrd, D-W. Va.; Clifford Case, R-N.J.; Carl Curtis, R-Neb.; Frank Church, D-Ida.; and Jennings Randolph, D-W. Va.

There are more than 1,350 women on Congressional payrolls who are paid in excess of $10,000 a year.

Hints from Heloise

By HELOISE CRUISE

Dear Heloise:

Did you ever see parents in a large department store pulling along one or two tired children and carrying all of their heavy hats and coats?

Well, my wife and I solved this by renting a locker and depositing the heavy coats and hats until we were through with our shopping.

So check your department store and see if they have these lockers that are usually designed for depositing your packages.

Bill J.F.O.

Dear Heloise:

When cleaning and trying to figure a way to rearrange the twins' room last week, I noticed that the backs of their chests of drawers are nice and smooth.

I thought what an ideal place for them to stick their art work and other pictures, rather than on the wall, so I put their chests at the foot of their beds with the backs exposed.

I think I will paint the backs one of these days, which will make them even more attractive.

Mrs. J. K.

What a nice mommy you are. Now the twins can enjoy their masterpieces while lying in bed.

Heloise

Dear Heloise: Did you know that happiness is really a clear vision to all things?

C.M.

Dear Heloise: I buy four or five chickens when they are on special and cook all the giblets for chicken stock.

To use the livers, I saute them for a little while and then add mushrooms and pour over a piece of garlic toast. Sure is good fixed this way.

Don't Cream at Night

If you're a night-cream applier, think twice. Night creams are spread all over the face and, since most women have combination skin, one cream can't possibly be good of the entire face. If you check your pillow in the morning, you'll discover that most of the cream is there—not on your face. Any cream that's not on the pillow, is probably in your hair. Use facials and moisturizers in the morning, in the evening, any time in between, but not overnight.

Daughter of Area Residents Honored Recently in Hawaii

SCHOFIELD BARRACKS, Hawaii, Nov. 3 — "Don't try to teach them anything, just keep them quiet." This shocking statement by an educator was a turning point in the life of a young teacher — Mrs. Robert A. Harleston — who was this week named Wife of the Year of the U.S. Army Hawaii. Mrs. Harleston is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Smith of Krumville.

Mrs. Harleston was selected for the honor for her noteworthy contributions in the rehabilitation of mentally retarded children.

A volunteer worker at the Waimano Home for the Mentally Retarded, and the Wahiawa Retarded Center, Mrs. Harleston's introduction to the field began in Leavenworth where she was a substitute teacher.

An English major in college, she was reluctant to substitute teach in a Special Education Field for which she was untrained. Pressed by the principal to take the temporary assignment because so many teachers avoided the retarded, she agreed and reported to the classroom.

There the regular teacher made the statement: "Don't try to teach them anything, just keep them quiet." And followed it by a gesture at the piano saying "don't play it, the children won't appreciate it."

The shock of this attitude jolted Mrs. Harleston into action. "I played that piano and those children sang and sang. They responded!"

Graduate work in progress, she changed her curriculum and began courses in Special Education for the Mentally Retarded.

Being a military wife the past 11 years, her efforts in the field of mental retardation have taken her to many locales. In Petersburg, Va., she was instrumental in organizing a summer reading program for culturally deprived children in the elementary schools. Through the Petersburg chapter of her sorority, Delta Sigma Theta, she was able to garner the support required to maintain the program. Civilians familiar with the remedial reading classes were amazed at the interest displayed by a "military transient."

At Leavenworth, Kansas, public schools were reluctant to take trainable retarded children. Special classes were set up at the Lutheran Church and Mrs. Harleston volunteered to each.

As chairman of the Welfare Committee of the Schofield Barracks Officers' Wives Club, she made direct contact with business establishments to get the "best deal" with limited funds to purchase shop tools for the Wahiawa Retarded Center.

Here in Hawaii, she is a teacher in Special Education for the Retarded at Wahiawa Elementary School.

Her persistence in creating a awareness of the problems of the mentally retarded sparked the interest of other military personnel who have now volunteered their time and efforts. Even the youngsters on post became involved in her project.

The retarded children make leis from koa seeds. The leis are sold to help subsidize the program. Koa seeds, being seasonal, must be collected and stored at the time they are available. Mrs. Harleston had children collecting bags of koa seeds. The children delivered countless bags of koa seeds and Mrs. Harleston hauled them by the station wagon load to the school for retarded children.

She is the wife of Major Robert Harleston, an Operations Officer in the Office of the Provost Marshal, Fort Shafter. They have four children.

Mrs. Harleston's goal is to create an awareness in the community of the apathy of American society toward retardation. Since recognizing a problem is paramount to any problem-solving technique, she believes the public can only be educated to the needs via mass media. A large percentage of the population forms its opinions as a direct reflection of what they see on TV, hear on the radio or read in the paper.

Some parents are hesitant to recognize signs of retardation in their children — they are ashamed. This unfortunate circumstance can only be corrected when that shame is dispelled.

Retardation can be dealt with more effectively in the early stages. Once recognized, testing is available and it can be ascertained at what level a child can develop. Children in her classes are taught crafts, and the products they produce are saleable.

Obviously, she does not believe "don't try to teach them anything, just keep them quiet." And, better than most of us who only have beliefs, she does something about them.

WIFE OF THE YEAR OF U. S. ARMY HAWAII is Mrs. Robert Harleston of Schofield Barracks, Hawaii. Mrs. Harleston was selected for the honor for her noteworthy contributions in the rehabilitation of mentally retarded children. Mrs. Harleston is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Smith of Krumville.

'God Is Not Dead in the Soviet Union'

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

ZAGORSK, U.S.S.R. (UPI) — God is not dead in the Soviet Union. Instead, he is very much alive in the numbers you see expressing their faiths despite the official government credo of atheism.

As a publication on religion in the U.S.S.R. from Novosti Press Agency's publishing house states, "The Communist party... does not conceal its views on religion and atheism and deems it necessary to struggle against religion, but the struggle is a matter of persuasion and not compulsion, waged only with ideological weapons. Extreme caution is used so as not to offend the religious convictions and feelings of the believers."

To claim that atheists are devoid of moral convictions, is to slander the Soviet people and the millions of people the world over who no longer believe in God."

So much for the government stand.

But how much practice is there of religious beliefs, in spite of the party's discouragement? The U.S. State Department estimates that between 50 and 70 million Soviets, in a country of some 239 million, "adhere to some religious faith; most are Russian Orthodox Christians."

Certainly, to this observer on a second tour in as many years to the U.S.S.R., practice of Christianity and of Muslimism, when you move into Central Asia, are quite open — more obvious this year than last year at about the same time.

Last year, guided tours for a group of U.S. women on an unofficial and informal "woman to woman" trip tended to skirt the religious centers. This trip, we have been through cathedrals and mosques, many of them fully restored in recent years, others under restoration. Last year, the tendency was to call the cathedrals "museums." This year, the Museum of Atheism in Leningrad was back to being the Cathedral of Kazan, but it still housed thousands of relics of anti-church artifacts.

CHRISTMAS BAZAAR — The Hellenic Women's Club will sponsor its third Christmas Bazaar and will feature a Greek pastry sale on Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 15-16 at St. George Greek Orthodox Church, 294 Greenkill Avenue, Kingston. Pictured here making final arrangements for the event are (L-R) Mrs. Theodore Couris, chairman; Mrs. Stamatis Blitziotis, president of Hellenic Women's Club; and Mrs. Anthony Kirtson, vice chairman of the bazaar. The event is scheduled to take place on Saturday from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. and Sunday from 1 to 4 p. m. in the Church Hall (Freeman photo by Haines).

1970 May Queen Selected

A FIRST AT KHS — Miss Alicia Bassett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bassett of 766 Albany Avenue Extension, Kingston, is the 1970 selection for May Queen of Kingston High School and holds the additional honor of being the first negro to achieve this distinction. A cosmetology major, Alicia is president of Vica Cosmetology Branch, and plans to attend a modeling school in New York after graduation. One of 10 children, her older brother Gary, a 1969 KHS graduate is presently touring the Caribbean, and a younger sister Nora is vice president of KHS junior class. Pictured here with Miss Bassett is her maid of honor, Miss Cindy Harder, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Alfred Harder of Hurley.

Look Here Mrs. Homemaker

Is your bag boil-in-the-pouch frozen vegetables? It is for a lot of shoppers, says Louise K. Breitung, Extension Home Economist. The boil-in-the-bag is about 10 years old, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. This packaging technique for frozen foods has been used largely for frozen vegetables. Today's volume of sales of frozen vegetables in boilable bags represents about six per cent of all frozen vegetables. Sales keep increasing year after year.

Among the more popular vegetables in boilable bags are spinach, green beans, baby Lima beans, Brussels sprouts, and cauliflower. Consumer advantages claimed for vegetables in boilable bags include built-in seasonings, reduced cooking odors, variety, and ease of cleaning up.

After hearing on the question, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced decisions on the inclusion of poultry in cooked sausage products including frankfurters, bologna, vienna sausage, knockwurst, and similar products. These decisions provide:

Up to 15 per cent of poultry may be included in cooked sausage products. When poultry is used, it must be named in the list of ingredients on the label. Larger amounts of poultry may also be included but, then, the name must clearly show its presence, such as "Frankfurter with Chicken."

When poultry is included in "all meat" sausages, only poultry meat (without skin) will be permitted. Poultry skin may be used in cooked sausage products that are not labeled as being composed of all meat. In that case, the amount of skin must not be more than the natural proportion that is present on the whole carcass of the part which is used.

AT THE MARKETS

Fishery Products — Liberal receipt of fishery products are reported at local markets. Striped bass is lower in price. Good supplies of pompano and red snappers are available, but neither fish is a low-cost choice. Make economical selections from among cod, flounder, cod and flounder fillets, bluefish, butterfish, mackerel, mullet, and whiting. Shellfish in plentiful supply includes steamer clams, muscles, hard crabs, bay scallops, lobsters and oysters.

Poultry Products — Broilers continue a leading economical selection. Marketings during the rest of this year will be about 15 per cent larger than in 1968. Turkey marketings may not equal last year by a small margin. Prices for the holiday turkey may be up a little from last season, but many stores will continue a policy of offering turkeys at cost to their customers.

Fruits and Vegetables — Apples are leading fruit choice as harvest continues for this fall favorite. Oranges and grapefruit from the new crop are reasonable in price. Vegetable selections include broccoli, carrots, onions, potatoes, sweet potatoes, endive, escarole, and turnips and rutabagas.

Sweet Potatoes — Production of sweet potatoes this year is forecast three per cent more than last year. Retail prices are expected to be reasonable. In shopping for sweet potatoes, remember that slight scars on the skin do not affect the interior of the potatoes. Decay spots should be avoided, however, since they result in waste. Choose sweets that are smooth, plump, and uniform in shape.

Coffee — Shoppers may soon find that retail coffee prices have joined other foods in the moving upward. The crop of coffee beans in Brazil suffered a frost some months ago. Dry weather has reportedly also reduced production. Prices for coffee imports have advanced sharply (25 to 30 per cent) in the past three months. Distributors have hiked prices to institutions and will probably do the same with family-sized packs soon.

Onteora Rocks Rondout, Alecca Is Injured

CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

Central High school during the gray Veterans Day afternoon. The Catskill mountain foothills reverberated with cheers, for an inspired band of Indians who climaxed their comeback season with a brilliant 23-0 victory over favored Rondout Valley Central.

Port Ewen Has New Cage Loop

PORT EWEN — American Legion Post 1298 of Port Ewen has formed a seven-team basketball league involving some 50 boys in the 13-18 age bracket. An eighth team is being sought to form two divisions for junior and senior high players.

Robert (Bob) Graves, principal of the Port Ewen School and one of the county's most widely known sports figures, is in charge of the program. He also started the Esopus Legion Little League baseball program 15 years ago and has stayed

KHS Game Films Set for Thursday

KINGSTON — The Kingston High School Booster Club for football will present the game films of last week's encounter with Our Lady of Lourdes for public viewing, Thursday, 8 p. m. at the Vocational Building.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wide receiver Dave Dunaway and center Gene Ceppetelli, acquired from the taxi squads of Washington and Philadelphia, were added to the New York Giants taxi squad Tuesday.

Hospital authorities said he suffered a cerebral concussion. The accident happened just eight seconds before the end of the game.

Over 500 Mark

The decisive win gave Coach Larry Karas' squad a 3-3 record and a tie for fourth place in the Ulster County Athletic League. Overall, the Indians finished over the 500 mark, with 4 wins and 3 losses. The scheduled game with Highland was not played.

Playing their best defensive game of the season, the Indians cashed in on two fumble recoveries and an intercepted pass to register three touchdowns to go with a second period safety.

Tom Kreissman, one of 23 seniors on the team, climaxed his Onteora career by recovering a fumble and intercepting

Recovery by Lyles

Another TD followed a fumble recovery by Bob Lyles and Larry Miller added frosting on the cake by tackling Quarterback Ken Brush in the end zone for a safety.

Quarterback Smith, who never played football until this season completed 9 of 16 passes for 118 yards and a 22 yard TD pass to Kreissman.

"It was a great defensive effort," said Coach Karas, obviously delighted with the fine showing of his team.

"It's hard to single out any one player, it was such a fine team effort. It seems like we came a long way in a year."

Mellert Outstanding

Sideline observers were quick to single out halfback Bill Mellert, who was magnificent on defense, in addition to scoring two of the Onteora TDs. On a couple of occasions, Mellert appeared to be badly shaken up, but each time he returned to the wars.

Kreissman recovered a fumble by Parte on the Rondout 44 early in the first period and in three plays the Indians struck paydirt. Smith first hit Steve Kimmel with a 25-yard pass to the Rondout 19, and after Mellert lost three, hit Kreissman on the same pattern day and Holsapple split the up for the score. He then passed to Kimmel for a 2 pointer and 8-0 lead.

After Miller tackled Brush in the end zone for the safety, Kreissman intercepted a Brush pass on the Rondout 32 and six plays later, Mellert boiled up the middle from the 9-yard line for the second touchdown. Milt Holsapple's try for the extra point was blocked. A 9-yard Kimmel covered 30 yards to the Rondout 14 on the sequence before Alecca's interception.

Fourth Down Pass

Onteora drove six plays for its final touchdown after Lyles recovered a Rondout fumble. The key play was a 10-yard, fourth down pass from Smith to Lyles on the Rondout 12. Mellert pass to the Rondout 19, and Kreissman on the OCS 44 late in the third quarter triggered an Onteora drive to the Rondout 2 where Alecca intercepted a pass and ran it back to the 24. A Smith-Lyles pass which was fumbled then recovered by point was blocked. A 9-yard Kimmel covered 30 yards to the Rondout 14 on the sequence before Alecca's interception.

Alecca was the workhorse of the day and gained most of the 77 yards picked up by the Ganders. His performance Tuesday, regrettably climaxed by the head injury, probably clinched an All-UCAL berth for him.

Highland Breezes, 27 to 0

MARLBORO — Bill Henderson, known as "Bear Cub" to his teammates, rambled for 160 yards and three touchdowns in 23 carries to pace Highland to a 27-0 victory over the Dukes of Marlboro yesterday at the loser's field. It was the third straight shutout and fourth in the last five games for the winners and marked the close of the Ulster County Scholastic League football season for both schools.

The pile-driving halfback tallied on rushes of six, three and five yards through the hapless Duke defenses.

Bruce Partington, Marlboro's Mr. Everything at halfback, was almost as effective as Henderson in the statistical department, gaining 122 yards on 23 carries, but couldn't get into the end zone. Partington's total gave him 1,015 yards for the season.

Marlboro put Partington's ground-gaining ability to good use in controlling the ball, but when the Highlanders did get their hand on it, they scored with comparative ease.

Early in the second quarter, the winners drove 43 yards in six plays for a score. John Indelicato, Highland's ace signal caller, completed passes of eight yards to Hardy Marx and 16 yards to Frank Crimi, starting the drive. Henderson took it over in two carries from the 16-yard line, with Cos Trapani kicking the extra point.

After the kickoff, the Dukes started from about midfield and with Partington accounting for 25 yards, moved to the winner's 28, only to lose the ball on downs.

The Highlanders took over and marched 70 yards in eight plays for another touchdown. Henderson, gaining 49 yards in the drive, bulled in from the three after Indelicato flipped a short pass to Crimi, who, in turn, lateraled to Doug Glaser at the three.

Ohio State and Texas Saturday Picks

By STEVE SNIDER
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Nine of the 10 big ones in college football figure to keep rolling this week.

That includes No. 1 Ohio State over No. 9 Purdue in the only matchup involving top tenners. No. 3 Tennessee may be in for a toughie against Mississippi but the others look solid.

Nearing the end of regular scheduling in a season regarded as more tumultuous than usual, here's how it looks from the top on down:

Ohio State 35, Purdue 21—Purdue's Mike Phipps will be hard to control but the Buckeyes aren't likely to let him get away.

"It is difficult to foresee Ohio State being defeated this year," says Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State, whose team was clobbered by both. "However, any team with a Mike Phipps leading the attack has an excellent chance to win any football game.

Phipps is the national leader in total offense and only two quarterbacks have passed for more yards this season.

But the Buckeyes have a secret weapon—defense. They're sixth against rushing and have yielded only 55 points in seven games, a 7.9 average that's second nationally. Purdue has been scored on at a rate of 25 a game.

Texas 35, Texas Christian 14—Powerful Longhorns make few errors.

Tennessee 24, Mississippi 17—Vols need best effort against Manning.

Penn State 42, Maryland 7—Caution: State's Joe Paterno doesn't like to pour it on. Arkansas 28, Southern Methodist 10—Too much for Mustangs.

Southern California 28, Washington 14—Trojans have the horses.

UCLA 35, Oregon 21—Uclans safe for another week.

Missouri 28, Iowa State 14—Tigers must avoid letdown to win handily.

Louisiana State 37, Mississippi State 10—Should be no strain.

Notre Dame 35, Georgia Tech 14—Irish hard to hold these days.

Stanford 24, Air Force 17—Battle of fifty quarterbacks.

Auburn 21, Georgia 17—Caution: Georgia overdue for big effort.

Houston 33, North Carolina State 21—Houston moves that ball.

Michigan 28, Iowa 20—Wolves sharpen for Ohio State next week.

Utah 24, Arizona 14—Muscle over speed here.

Also:

East—Army three over Pittsburgh, Syracuse 18 over Navy, Boston College 14 over VMI, Delaware seven over Boston U., Dartmouth 14 over Cornell, Princeton seven over Yale, Villanova six over William and Mary, Harvard seven over Brown, Pennsylvania three over Columbia, Colgate seven over Lafayette, Connecticut eight over Rhode Island, Vermont one over Maine, Massachusetts 14 over New Hampshire.

Midwest: Kansas State three over Nebraska, Indiana six over Northwestern, Minnesota one over Oklahoma State, Colorado one over Oklahoma State, Oklahoma 10 over Kansas, Cincinnati one over Ohio U., Miami, O., eight over Kent State, Toledo eight over Dayton, Marshall one over East Carolina, Wisconsin six over Illinois.

South—Alabama three over Miami, Fla., Florida 18 over Kentucky, Florida State one over Memphis State, South Carolina eight over Wake Forest, North Carolina six over Clemson, Virginia Tech three over Duke, West Virginia 10 over Richmond, Tulane eight over Virginia, the Citadel 15 over Furman, Louisville three over Wichita State.

Southwest—Texas A. and M. seven over Rice, Texas Tech 12 over Baylor, Arizona State 12 over University of Texas, El Paso, Bowling Green three over West Texas State, North Texas State six over Tulsa, Wyoming 19 over New Mexico State.

Far West—Oregon State seven over Washington State, California 12 over San Jose State, Utah State six over Brigham Young, Colorado State seven over Idaho, San Diego State 15 over New Mexico State.

Boyle's Take Lead In YMCA 'B' League

KINGSTON—Bluestone Inn snapped Boyle's A.C.'s five-game winning streak in the YMCA "B" basketball league, 58-51, but the losers bounced back to rout winless Yallum's, 71-44.

Boyle's now boast a two-game edge over Stulb's and Bluestone in the important loss column with two games left to play.

In other action, Stulb's stopped Bluestone, 50-46, and routed Yallum's, 81-38.

John Mower of Bluestone hit 29 points and Pat Harder scored 27 for Stulb's.

The scores:

Bluestone Inn (58)—G. Beesmer 5, B. Beesmer 4, Koehn 6, Mower 29, Gahan 12, Doran 2.

Rhinebeck Gun Club Sets Turkey Shoot Saturday

RHINEBECK—The Neighbors Gun Club of Rhinebeck has rescheduled its Turkey Shoot for this Saturday at 11 a.m. until dusk. The shoot had been planned for last Saturday, but heavy rains forced the change.

According to Dick Laibach of the club, all events are prepared and shooting is scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. with a fast paced shoot with shotgun slug and shot events ranging from running deer to flying ducks and standing shots. Events for pistol shooters and rifle shooters also will be scheduled, he said, time permitting.

THE WINNER — Karabas, with Jockey Lester Piggott up at right, wins the $150,000 Washington International turf classic as Hawaii and Jockey Jorge Velasquez finish second (L) and Czar Alexander comes down the middle third with Angelo Cordero up. (UPI TELE- PHOTO)

LAUREL, Md. (UPI)—England, winner of the inaugural running of the Washington D.C. International in 1952, finally had its second victory today, thanks to a stirring stretch charge by Karabas in the 18th running of the event at Laurel.

The big, husky colt with a grass-cutting stride carried jockey Lester Piggott to a length and one-quarter triumph over Hawaii, one of America's runners, with Czar Alexander, the other, in third place, half a length farther back.

The 1969 renewal of the race was supposed to be a match between the two U.S. representatives to decide the grass course champion of this country. If it did, that distinction went to Hawaii, a South African colt owned by Charles Engelhard.

But the $100,000 winner's purse went to Lord Iveagh, the owner of Karabas whose sire, Worden, won the race for France back in 1953.

The victory marked Piggott's second straight triumph in the race. He was aboard Sir Ivor a year ago when that colt won for Ireland by Beating Czar Alexander. Piggott was criticized for that ride even though he won when he rode Sir Ivor into a pocket in the stretch and got free only when a horse outside of him tired and stopped.

This time there was nothing to criticize. Piggott dropped Karabas alongside the rail and kept him there all the way. When he made his bid in the stretch the way was open this time, and Karabas roared down the straightaway with a powerful surge, overtaking both American horses on the way to victory.

When he broke into a clear length lead with about an eighth of a mile to go, Karabas no chance to loaf or relax under Piggott's whipping.

Karabas had looked impressive in preparing at Laurel for the International and the crowd made him third choice. He paid $9.20, $3.60 and $2.80 across the board in winning his sixth straight race.

Hawaii, who picked up $25,000 for finishing second in the final race of his career, paid $2.80 and $2.20. Czar Alexander, owned by Gustave Ring, paid $2.60 and won $10,000.

Germany's Hitchcock was fourth with Sabinus of Brazil was home free although he got fifth and Don Florestan of Venezuela sixth, each won $5,000 leaving Takeshiba O, who finished seventh and last, the only starter to earn nothing.

Lord Iveagh and Bernard Van Cutsem, his trainer, were highly pleased with Karabas and the way Piggott rode him.

"He was very well ridden and we have hopes for coming back next year since Karabas will race for one more season," said Lord Iveagh.

"He was beautifully ridden," said Van Cutsem. "The race went as I wanted, as far as you can ever plan it. Karabas got through on the rails, seized his opportunity and went right on. He is a helluva good horse and a charming horse."

Since he was criticized for last year's winning ride, Piggott was reluctant to talk to reporters but he did say Sir Ivor was the better horse in his opinion.

Don Florestan went to the front at the start with Sabinus right behind him. Near the end of the backstretch Czar Alexander slipped along on the rail to take the lead and Hawaii, who raced wide on every turn, went around three horses to chalenge Czar Alexander on the final turn.

Momentarily it looked like an All American finish. Then Karabas slipped through along the rail where he had run throughout the race, battled to the front in the first half of the homestretch and held his lead for the rest of the way.

The best U.S. finish in the competition's closing event was a fourth place by William Steinkraus aboard his mount Bold Minstrel.

However, Steinkraus captured the international individual championship, duplicating a feat he achieved in 1965, and helped the U.S. to an overwhelming victory in the team competition. The United States finished with 130 points compared to 60 for runnerup Argentina, 50 for Canada and 20 for Mexico.

Steinkraus had 42 points for the individual title while teammate Frank Chapot finished second with 32.

Nordics Join Junior Jump League

ROSENDALE — More than 50 junior Nordic skiing hopefuls and their parents attended an orientation meeting of the Rosendale Nordic Ski Club at the Marletown School to hear the training and competitive program for the coming winter season outlined.

Walter Williams, vice president of the Rosendale Nordics, conducted the meeting during which Kenneth Tokle of High Falls, the jumping coach, told of a new competitive league formed by the United States Eastern Amateur Ski Association for junior Nordic skiers between the ages of 8 and 13. Named the Torger Tokle League after America's oldest legendary champion ski jumper who gave his life for our country at a young age in World War II.

The league includes the Ro-sendale Nordics in its southern district along with Salisbury, Conn., Bear Mountain, Mt. Beacon and Great Gorge, N. J. The best juniors in the southern district will be pitted against the best in the north country in a Torger Tokle League Championship in March.

Oscar Johnson, Junior chairman, outlined the dry land training program for pre-season conditioning which is currently being conducted every Sunday afternoon at Williams Lake in the form of soccer games against Trail Sweepers of Kingston and other dry land training exercises. Johnson has again named Captain Alvar Ryman of Binewater as cross country ski coach for the junior challengers.

The movie was taken from the vantage point of the judges' tower, where few spectators are ever privileged to view the tournament.

Five countries who participated were the United States, Germany, Italy, Yugoslavia and Canada, with three famous Olympians competing, including the 1968 Gold Medal winner from Germany, Franz Keller.

The film shows more than 20 jumps exceeding the 200 foot mark and the breaking of the Rosendale hill record. Admission is free and the film will be shown following the regular meeting of the Sweepers.

Among those who competed and will be seen in film are: Giacomo Amonni, two-time Olympian of Italy; 1968 Olympic Gold Medal Nordic Combined winner of Germany; Ludvig Zajc, two-time Olympian from Yugoslavia; Roger Dion of Canada.

Others include Dana Zelena of the U.S. National Team, and Peter Mikkelsen of the United States Air Force and Eastern team, as well as 30 other top U.S. ski jumping contenders.

Kennedy Gives Blessing To Draft Lottery Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who helped block President Nixon's draft lottery bill for two weeks, gave it his blessing today and said he hoped the Senate would pass it "in a week or two."

Kennedy bowed to Sen. John C. Stennis' demand the lottery measure be passed through without consideration of other draft reforms. But Kennedy said he expected in return the Senate Armed Services Committee to approve next year "a bill on the kinds of sweeping draft reform so important to guarantee a fair, nondiscriminatory draft."

Kennedy's judiciary subcommittee on administrative practice and procedure resumed hearings on alleged draft inequities, and summoned Robert H. Finch, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) to testify.

Under Nixon's lottery bill, which has passed the house, the President could impose a new system under which draftees would be picked by random selection, in effect like names drawn from a hat. Nixon's plan is to draft 19-year-olds first, thus reversing the present policy under which youths are eligible for draft until their 26th birthday with the oldest candidates taken first.

Old Friends Best Friends

NEW YORK (AP) — Television this season seems to be proving, if nothing else, that old friends are best friends.

In the most recent national Nielsen ratings lists, every one of the 10 most popular TV series is at least two years old—and six have survived for six or more years.

The report, covering shows broadcast between Oct. 27 and Nov. 2, is typical of the season's showing. NBC's "Laugh-In" is in first place and is two years old. A close second is CBS' "Red Skelton Show," age 19. Third is "Gunsmoke," now 15.

Then there is NBC's "Bonanza," 10; CBS' "Mayberry, R.F.D.," which, if you count its years as "The Andy Griffith Show," is seven; NBC's "The Wonderful World of Disney" on the networks for 16 years, and CBS' "Beverly Hillsbillies," eight.

The younger crowd in the Nielsen elite group includes "Family Affair," four, and Glen Campbell's variety hour, two. A bit farther down the list there are "Here's Lucy," starring a performer who has been on television for 18 years, and "My Three Sons," which started 10 years back.

"Gunsmoke," leading the list a week ago and in show position this time, is probably a source of pride and embarrassment to CBS executives. Only a couple of seasons back the show was abruptly canceled—not so much for inadequate numbers of viewers but because many of them were older and nonurban.

There were loud howls of rage, a blizzard of mail and "Gunsmoke" was relieved. It was moved out of its late time slot and, with some of its raw action removed, became more popular than ever in an early evening time period that attracted a young family audience.

In the current ratings, only one new show, Bill Cosby's situation comedy, has stuck like a burr in the top 20 shows. But Cosby can hardly be counted a new face in TV after those "I Spy" seasons.

NBC, incidentally, jumped show to a widow named Barbara in the lead in the weekly bar — Beverly Garland. If averages, building a 19.7, to theirs is like other TV nuptials, CBS' 18.9. ABC followed with 11.4. Although CBS and ABC high Nielsen ratings. The home plan to replace their weakest folks just love to watch wed- shows at midseason, it seems dings.

Drinking is certainly a problem in business these days. Our lousy pal finds it increasingly hard to sneak out for a quick one in the morning.

They're fiddling around with making meat substitutes from soybeans, when all they have to do is visit our nonfavorite beany to sample 100 per cent synthetic food.

Of course, witches ride brooms on Halloween. Wouldn't they look perfectly silly on vacuum cleaners?

Settlement on the Antiwar March

A Washington Compromise for a Pledge

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government has agreed to allow an antiwar march, perhaps involving up to 70,000 demonstrators, to pass within one block of the White House in exchange for a pledge of nonviolence from leaders of the protest.

The agreed upon march route involves use of Pennsylvania Avenue, the multilane street that is the traditional course taken by parades honoring inaugurated presidents and national heroes.

Leaders of the New Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam (New Mobe), who had fought for use of Pennsylvania Avenue during lengthy negotiations with the Justice Department, hailed the agreement as a victory.

The Justice Department in turn said the settlement was hinged on the New Mobe making public assurances the march would be nonviolent. The New Mobe later said "there will be no violence in Washington" Saturday, and the Justice Department said it would not hold the group responsible for any isolated trouble that might occur.

The final route represents a compromise of sorts. Originally the group had wanted to surround the White House. In the route now agreed upon, marchers will assemble on the mall in front of Capitol Hill and then pour out onto Pennsylvania Avenue, walking toward the White House as far as 15th street. At that point they will turn south to the Washington Monument for a 2 p.m. EST rally featuring music and speeches.

New Mobe leaders have estimated up to 70,000 will participate in the two and one-half hour march which is to start at 10 a.m. EST. They predict up to 200,000 antiwar demonstrators for the rally and related events later this week.

The Justice Department also agreed to keep military personnel off the parade route in exchange for a commitment from the New Mobes to use 2,000 parade marshals to line the southern half of the street where the parade will be confined. The New Mobes also agreed to use 500 additional marshals to protect government buildings along the route.

At Binghamton, N.Y.,

students at the State University of New York said 22 of 35 buses they had chartered to carry demonstrators to Washington for the protest had been canceled. The students accused the government of bringing pressure on the bus firms, but the FBI denied it and the New Mobes said they had no confirmed report on what had happened.

Running Battle Nets 12 Reds, Biggest Since Marine Pullout

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. troops aboard armored personnel carriers caught a company of North Vietnamese by surprise below the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) and chased them across three hills in an 11-hour battle reported today.

Military spokesmen described the clash three miles south of the DMZ Tuesday as the biggest fight in that area since U.S. Marines began pulling out a month ago.

Twelve North Vietnamese were killed in the running battle. Two of the U.S. 5th Mechanized Infantry Division soldiers died and 10 suffered wounds after catching the guerrillas on a hillside at 4:30 a.m.

The battle below Con Thien on the eastern end of the DMZ was one of several skirmishes reported. Military spokesmen said a total of 220 Communist troops were killed against U.S.

losses of five dead and 37 wounded.

U.S. B52 bombers came in from foreign bases for eight raids during the night, two of them hitting at the western end of the zone near the old abandoned Allied fortress at Khe Sanh.

Six of the strikes were directed against the North Vietnamese troops threatening U.S. Green Beret and artillery camps along the Cambodian border north of Saigon.

Even as the Stratoforts' 500 and 750-pound bombs rocked the countryside, the guerrillas were firing five man-sized rockets into the Ban Me Thuot helicopter base supporting the outposts, causing light damage.

Military spokesmen in Saigon had no reports of new fighting in the region 110 to 130 miles north of the capital. The North Vietnamese began their drive 11 days ago, forcing Allied troops of the 1st Air Cavalry Division trapped and killed 18 North Vietnamese 70 miles northwest of Saigon Tuesday in another area endangered by the Communist troop buildup. No American casualties were reported.

The B52s, flying from bases in Thailand, came in during the night for an almost continuous series of raids, dropping a total of at least 600 tons of bombs onto suspected Communist

'Like Saving Boxer on Ropes'

LONG BINH, Vietnam (UPI)—One of the top U.S. field commanders in Vietnam said today a cease-fire now would be comparable to ringing the bell to save a boxer backed against the ropes.

The boxer in this case, said Lt. Gen. Julian Ewell, are the

Reports from Washington have said President Nixon has come under pressure from some lawmakers and military men to declare a cease-fire as a step toward a Vietnam settlement.

"It would create very serious problems," Ewell said in an interview. "Fortunately, we have never had a long cease-fire. But even the short ones the enemy has used to run around and get stuck back together again."

himself back together again before the next round.

"A cease-fire gives the enemy a chance to bring in replacements, to resupply and rebuild. But naturally if someone told us we were going to have a cease-fire, we'd do it," he said.

The general is a veteran of 22 months service in Vietnam.

Apollo 12 Crew Relaxes, Reviews Moon Landing Plan

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—With everything going "great" for launch Friday, Apollo 12's astronauts relaxed at their quarters today and reviewed plans for the nation's second moon landing mission.

The 11:22 a.m. EST blastoff is just two days away, and Charles "Pete" Conrad, Richard F. Gordon and Alan L. Bean are ready.

Gordon canceled a plane flight Tuesday and instead remained at his quarters catching up on paper work. Bean worked out for a while in a lunar module simulator. Conrad has planned to fly a helicopter, but switched to the jet instead.

The three Navy commanders are scheduled to board the command ship Yankee Clipper at 8:42 a.m., Friday and spend the next two hours and 40 minutes getting set for the start of the 10-day adventure.

Among the thousands expected to be on hand for the blastoff are President Nixon, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and Mrs. Pat Nixon. The President tentively was scheduled to arrive at 10:10 a.m. launch day.

Officials in communities surrounding the space center estimate that half a million persons will be in the area to see Apollo 12 rumble skyward. Between 750,000 and one million were on hand for the launch of Apollo 11 in July.

Talks Scheduled in Moscow Over Arab-Israeli Conflict

By United Press International

The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said today President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt will send three top aides to Moscow next week for important talks about the Arab-Israeli conflict prior to the Arab world summit.

In Tel Aviv, a military spokesman announced four Israeli soldiers were injured Tuesday night in mortar duels across the southern sector of the Suez Canal. No further details were given.

Al Ahram said Anwar El Sadat, a member of the Arab Socialist Union's Supreme Executive Committee, will lead the Egyptian delegation to the Soviet capital. He is considered second to Nasser in the ruling hierarchy.

The group also will include Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad and War Minister Gen.

Mohamed Fawzi, the newspaper said.

Disclosure of the trip came following another day of fighting along the Suez Canal that included an Israeli-Egyptian aerial duel 20,000 feet above the waterway. Israel reported four clashes with Jordanian forces.

Sources close to the Arab league said invitations were being issued today for the Arab summit scheduled in Rabat

Dec. 20. The meeting will be the second of its kind since the 1967 Middle East War. The first was in Khartoum in September, 1967.

In Gaza City in the occupied Gaza Strip, bulldozers today began knocking down a 300-foot long wall surrounding the El Fares produce market. The action was taken in retaliation for a grenade attack Tuesday, the third in as many days.

Israeli authorities said demolition of the wall would expose the market to surveillance.

Five Firebombs at Brooklyn Bank

NEW YORK (AP)—Five firebombs were thrown at a bank building in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn today, causing minor damage, police reported.

Police said a group of youths on a tenement roof threw a single firebomb at the Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. branch at 1528 Pitkin Ave., near Saratoga Ave., at 12:45 a.m.

Police found a plate glass window had been broken but a search failed to locate the youths.

At about 1:45 a.m. four more firebombs were thrown at the bank, apparently from the same rooftop, police said. Several more windows were broken.

Meanwhile, police investigators are checking possible links between Tuesday's explosions at three Manhattan office buildings and earlier blasts, including an attack last month on the Armed Forces Induction Center.

More than 100 telephoned warnings of imminent bombings were received by police Tuesday, all of them unfounded.

The explosive devices used Tuesday at the RCA Building, the Chase Manhattan Building and the General Motors Building were "high-order explosives on the nature of dynamite connected to a timing mechanism," a police spokesman said.

Similar devices were used at the Whitehall Street induction center Oct. 7, the Federal Building in Foley Square Sept. 19, the Marine Midland Building Aug. 20 and a Grace Line pier in Brooklyn Aug. 9, the spokesman said.

He added, "We are not at this time claiming a definite connection with those blasts, but the matter is under investigation."
